Labor Takes the Helm Enough Wealth for All One Thing Important 100 Million Years Old

Current Events

THE BRITISH Liberal party, led by Asquith, will put in a Labor government. "British fair play demands that Labor shall have its chance," they say. They really mean: "Caution makes it necessary to keep Labor good natured."

ENGLAND'S "big business" is having a little inside mental panic with Labor coming into power.

With great solemnity it expresses fear that Labor may govern the Empire in the interests of "one side," the side of Labor. That would be too bad. Big business, of course, never governs in the interest of its own side when it has the chance.

I. C. HERMAN, manufacturer of handkerchiefs, gives his business to employes, saying: "I am rich enough," and that surprises us.

We should all be rich enough, ten times too rich, as regards what we really need if the wealth were properly developed and competition were replaced by emulation.

This earth would produce more than enough of everything for all the people on it, and ten times as many people, if it were intelligently developed, as it will be some day.

At the present, however, grasping selfishness is a necessary tool in the hands of Wise Providence.

NEXT SUNDAY, Dr. Russell, who teaches astronomy at Princeton University, will preach in St. George's Church, New York, on "Immortality." There will be a small crowd listening, and a small notice in the newspapers. Yet the subject is the only one that has any real importance for human beings. If immortality is a foolish dream, and this short life with its struggles and disappointments is the end of us, what does life amount to?

FOR MORE than a hundred centuries each man has asked himself, "What becomes of me when I die?" Apart from Fate, we know nothing.

Professor Russell will be compelled to admit that he looks many millions of miles through his telescope without finding anything that looks like a Heaven with gold paved streets. But there is this grain of comfort:

"Attractions are proportioned to destinies," as Fourtier said. Every human being longs for immortality. It is difficult to believe that the power ruling us would make us all crave a thing if we were not destined to have it.

ANOTHER shock for Mr. A. Bryan and others that take their botany and zoology literally from the Old Testament. In the petrified forests of South Dakota's Black Hills, Mr. Davies, director of the Marshall Field Museum of Natural History, finds flowers that are at least a hundred million years old.

When they were blooming, Triceratops with his horns, and the long-necked Brontosaurus were roaming about. All these animals and flowers had turned to stone long before Noah made his zoological collection—at least that's what science says.

Court Sends Borrowed Baby to Almshouse

BOY ADMITS $19,000 THEFT

$30 A WEEK CASHIER STOLE FOR HIS WIFE

Is Seized in a Maine Logging Camp for the Hub Police, While She Awaits Stork

A lean-limbed, red-cheeked boy stepped from a Pullman sleeper at the North Station today, slipped into a taxicab with a detective and was driven to police headquarters.

He was Carl L. Stevens, twenty-one years old, of No. 10 Laurel street, Melrose.

Up to a short time ago he was cashier at the banking house of Baker, Young & Co., No. 59 Congress street. He was paid $30 a week.

While there he stole, police charge, $19,000.

In fact, they say Stevens has signed a confession to that effect.

Back in Fairfield Centre, Me., is his young wife, who within ten days expects to know motherhood.

When her boy husband, following discovery of peculations in the banking house accounts, left town she went with him.

When he took a job in a logging camp in the Maine woods she got a little cabin nearby and cooked his food and administered to him.

He didn't run, police say, gave no bogus name to the loggers who hired him. He went up to Fairfield Centre and signed up as Carl Stevens and worked as Carl Stevens.

And at his side every night in the first cruel days of the snow-tearing labor of felling trees and logging them toward tidewater was his young wife.

She soothed him with words and lotions. Today she would have been back at his side in Boston, but physicians forbid her.

Stevens was a student at the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, No. 921 Boylston street, Back Bay, while he worked at the Congress street banking house.

He was arrested in the Maine woods two days ago by a sheriff at the request of Inspectors Loughlin and Connolly of Boston.

Ten days ago the Suffolk grand jury had secretly indicted the boy cashier.

"I don't know why I did it." Us detectives say Stevens told them.

The money vanished between Oc-

SCORNS WEALTH TO STAY WITH HUSBAND

Chicago, Jan. 19 (C.N.S.).—Mrs. Joseph Taylor White, formerly Josephine Kryle, daughter of the famous bandmaster, who today was installed as president of the new First National Bank of Berwin, sadly opined that she might as well go back home.

Mrs. White arrived from Rochester, N. Y., today in the hope of a reconciliation between herself and her father in regard to her marriage.

Two years ago Josephine sacrificed $100,000 promised her by her father if she would not marry before she was thirty. She eloped and had not seen her father since that time.

He is not at home to welcome her today, enjoying his triumph at the bank with tears in his eyes as he talked of his daughter who awaited him at the family home.

PAIR LOSE 'BORROWED' CHILD

Real Mother Declares She Will Now Keep "Love Baby" for Herself

Springfield, Jan. 19.—Leland Miller today started a fight for legal custody of the six-months-old baby his wife adopted and foisted upon him as his own child.

Miller appealed to Judge William R. Heady in the Court of Domestic Relations. Judge Heady refused to grant the plea. He intimated to the police that the Miller home was not, in his opinion, the best place for the baby.

Followed then a heart-rending scene in the almshouse where "Sydney Winstone Miller" was kicking his chubby feet into the air and laughing at the motherly matron.

Miller went to the almshouse to say "goodby" to the baby he thought until yesterday was his own flesh and blood. The innocent centre of the tangle looked up at "daddy" and smiled. Tears filled the "father's" eyes.

WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

"I'll have my baby back if I have to go through every court in the state of Massachusetts," said Miller. "I could not love him more were he my own."

Miller engaged the firm of Cummings & Levy, attorneys, to conduct his fight and action was started immediately in the Probate Court. The case will be heard by Judge Charles L. Long.

GIRL NURSE MISSING 2 MONTHS

Ethel Monahan Vanishes After Leaving Home of Friends in Roxbury

Mystery surrounds the disappearance of Miss Ethel Monahan, a nurse at the Westboro State Hospital. She has been missing for over two months. Miss Monahan was last seen by a friend, Mrs. Margaret Cady of No. 93 Hunneman street, Roxbury, at whose home she stayed the night before her disappearance.

Mrs. Cady told the following story:

"I met Ethel, through my daughter Margaret, who is also a nurse in the same hospital, about nine months ago. She used to come to our house and stay sometimes on her day off.

"About Nov. 1 last year she came to the house in the evening, and asked if she could stay all night. She said that she had had a day off, and had missed the last car back to the hospital. I told her she was welcome to stay, and she did.

"She was up next morning at half-past eight, ate breakfast, and then went away, telling me that she was going back to the hospital. This was the last I or anyone ever saw of her."

The girl's friends at the hospital have appealed to police and newspapers to take up a search for her. According to them, she was five feet four inches tall, weighed 116 pounds, had black bobbed hair and brown eyes and when she was last seen, wore a brown cloth coat with a fur collar, a blue crepe dress and black shoes and stockings.

She has no people of her own around Boston, except her father, who is said to be an inmate of the Chelsea Naval Hospital. All her belongings and two weeks' pay were left at the hospital and the authorities at the institution think something must be wrong or she would have come back after her money and clothes.

FIND SHERIFF SLAIN; WIFE FACES GRILLING

Wallingford, Vt., Jan. 19.—For months Deputy Sheriff Allan A. Leonard and his second wife fought in their home here.

She accused him of "gadding" with other women. What he said isn't known. But to neighbors where she told her stories repeatedly she exhibited bruises on her arms and body.

Today Leonard was found dead in the kitchen of his home, a bullet wound in the back of his skull. At his side lay his wife in a pool of her husband's blood. A foot away was Leonard's gun, a 32-calibre automatic pistol.

Mrs. Leonard was not hurt. There were no marks of injuries on her person. She was merely unconscious. Strangely enough, she had telephoned Dr. J. H. Miller to hasten to the house a few minutes before. It was the physician who spread the alarm of what authorities term a "murder."

BELIEVE SHERIFF SLAIN.

Late today the wife was still in a stupor. She lay in the house, semi-unconscious, while authorities stepped soft-footed about, prying here and there and waiting to question the woman when her strength

The town, almost destroyed by Pancho Villa in 1916, also wants adequate protection by American troops.

WIFE ADMITS STEALING WAIF; AIMED TO MAKE HUSBAND HAPPY

SUBSTITUTED CHILD FOR ONE HE EXPECTED AS HIS OWN

the baby, told a Boston American reporter today that she intends to keep her baby.

An earlier statement made public by her attorney that the mother wished to have the Millers keep her child was repudiated.

Pretty, with red cheeks, blue eyes and golden brown hair, Miss Moriarity sat in her home and planned what she would do when it is all over and I have my baby."

"I am going to keep baby," she said. "Mrs. Miller can never have her. She promised to give my baby a good home and bring him up in my religion. She didn't keep her promise and I have no sympathy for her."

It developed today that at the time Mrs. Miller adopted the baby under the name of "Winstone" she promised Miss Moriarity to have he child baptized a Catholic on the following Sunday and a paper to that effect was signed.

There is no record that this has been done. Despite this Miss Moriarity stands with the Millers.

"They have been so good to my baby," she said. "I want them to have him."

Mrs. Miller today told the story of her fraud in four short words.

"I lied for love," she said.

"My dear young husband had set his heart upon a baby, a little son," Mrs. Miller went on, propped upon pillows in the home of her parents-in-law. "His concern about my condition overpowered my scruples.

"To have disappointed his hopes would have crushed him and killed me. I could not do it, and when something happened to me in the hospital at Worcester which made that disappointment inevitable, unless I stooped to harmless trickery and entered upon my brief career of deceit, I did not hesitate."

CLAIMED BY MOTHER

The baby in the case, heretofore known as "Sydney Winstone Miller," is claimed as her own by Miss Mary Moriarity of Springfield, whose suit against one Carney of the same city was met by the lawyer's declaration that he is a native of Missouri, the "show me" State.

"I'll pay no hospital bills," said Carney, "there wasn't any kid. If there was where is it? Produce it!"

Miss Moriarity appealed to the State authorities and a search was begun which ended only with the tearful acknowledgment of a young wife in Southbridge that she "lied for love."

The boy was born on July 15, last, in a hospital on Northampton street, Springfield.

His mother was unmarried.

Two hours after his birth a beautiful young woman called, looking for a baby to adopt. "I am Mrs. Harriet Winstone," she said, "of No. 350 St. James street."

VANISHES WITH BABE

She took the baby away with her, going first to the office of an attorney, designated by the hospital authorities, for the purpose of drawing up adoption papers.

"Meet me in court in three days," said the attorney.

The young woman never came back.

Nothing more was heard of "Sydney Winstone Miller" until his girl mother was discharged from the hospital, and brought suit against the man she says she had trusted. The girl mother wasn't talking of "marriage" any more; all she wanted, she said, was a sum of money big enough to pay the hospital bills and her other expenses.

The real mother of Sydney Winstone Miller appealed to the State authorities, and a search for "Mrs. Harriet Winstone," late but no more of No. 350 St. James street, Springfield, led them straight to Mrs. Leland Miller, twenty-two years old, at No. 5 Spring street, in Southbridge, home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred F. Miller, the young woman's parents-in-law.

Young Mrs. Miller, before her marriage late in 1922, was Peach Winstone, who had come to Southbridge as an industrial nurse in the staff of the American Optical Company. She claims to be a Southerner.

On her knee was the boy taken from the Springfield hospital in July last, but it was three hours before Peach Winstone Miller owned up and surrendered him to the authorities.

MRS. MILLER'S STORY

Mrs. Peach Winstone Miller's father-in-law owns one of the most prosperous public garages in town. Their home is one of Southbridge's best.

"My history before I came to Southbridge," the young woman said, "has nothing to do with the baby and I am not going to discuss it beyond saying I came from the south and that my father is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point. He is now in charge of the Army training ship Chandler, making a tour of the world.

"Soon after Leland and I were married, we had reason to believe that before the Summer was far advanced a little one would come to stay with us, and the news made the young husband the happiest man in all this world.

"Then I had a frightful experience. I was set upon in my father-in-law's garage by a negro, who, meaning robbery, gave me a terrible beating. He was arrested and after a long trial convicted and sent to prison for five years.

"I had to go to the hospital in Worcester, where the trial took place. There I met with the accident. Something happened. There wasn't going to be a living baby, at all.

"How could I tell Leland? I just couldn't! His heart was set on our baby, our boy.

HAPPINESS DASHED

"I didn't tell him. I never to him until the policewomen from Springfield came and took Sydney away from us.

"Using my knowledge and experience as a nurse, I decided on the private hospitals, and, to make the story brief, I finally found the boy.

"I shall never forget my happiness then. Sydney, I brought the child into the Springfield house in which we then were living and went to bed with him. 'Look,' I said to Leland when he came home, 'look what the good God has sent to us.'

"'O, Dearest,' said my husband, and kissed us both.

"My face was wet with tears.

"We all loved little Sydney, and will always love him, Leland's father and mother as much as Leland and I. They know the truth now, Mr. and Mrs. Miller do, but understand that I was actuated wholly by love for their son, they have forgiven me.

"One of my mistakes was made when I went to Springfield City Hall and, using the name of a physician, registered the birth of twins, Sydney Winstone Miller and Hope Winstone Miller, and the death of the little girl. The State authorities set after me in earnest after they had interviewed the physician and were told I never had been his patient.

"Why twins? Because I feared that some one who knew of my trouble in the Worcester Hospital might some day mention it to my husband or his people. You know how strangely things happen, sometimes. I wanted to be prepared to admit that I had met with a mishap, and at the same time be ready to explain "Sydney."

"I did it. I lied for love. I wasn't hurting anybody. In my heart, I felt that I was helping everybody—helping my sweetheart, my own dear husband, bringing joy into the love lives of his wonderful parents, helping some poor girl, whose name I did not know and did not even inquire about, and helping the baby —my own Sydney!

"And now I am so unhappy. I have been in bed, ill for several days, and all the time the lines from Scott in 'Marmion' have been plaguing me:

'Oh, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practice to deceive!'

"But I do want little Sydney back again. My husband wants him back. Sydney's Grandma and Grandpa want him back. Why cannot the State leave him with us? The authorities are said to be looking for a home to place him in. In God's name, what better home can they find than this, his own home?"

Leland Miller, the girl's husband, is in Springfield today, trying to find a way to adopt the child legally.

Meanwhile, action is pending in the suit of the boy's Real Mother against his (alleged) Real Father, for the hospital bill.

for money he spent in defending Mrs. Stillman from charges made by her husband naming the guide as the father of baby Guy Stillman.

The suit places the total amount of the claim at $8,426 and acknowledges payment of $1,168 from Mrs. Stillman's lawyers. To the balance of $7,258 is added $883 interest.

Beauvais, who was active in Mrs. Stillman's defense in the early stages of the sensational trial, says he paid his expenses to and from New York, went on trips in Canada to round up witnesses, paid their expenses and advanced all expenses of a Miss Kline, employed as a nurse and secretary to Mrs. Stillman.

The amount claimed $3,500 is itemized as "salary and expense" of the guide. One item put his salary from June 1, 1918, to November 1, 1919, at $1,500. The expenses of his brother, Arthur Beauvais, are also included.

Bailiff's fees, witnesses' fees, lawyers' fees, "money advanced to Mrs. Stillman's party," make up the rest of the claim.

Reports of a dispute between Mrs. Stillman and Beauvais have been current for some time. The suit of the guide is the first definite evidence, however, that the rumors had any foundation.

would permit. The woman was not under arrest.

Came Dr. C. S. Whitney from Burlington to perform an autopsy on the body. Already authorities scoff at suicide. Dr. Whitney will determine officially if suicide could have been possible.

On the spot also is State's Attorney Charles Nowell, in charge of the investigation. He said:

"So far as I can determine Leonard and his wife were alone in the house when the shot that killed the man was fired. Who fired it is a mystery we wish to clear up. She went to the telephone and called Dr. Miller. When he arrived she was unconscious, the man dead."

They didn't speak to the Leonards. In fact they stopped speaking twenty years ago when Leonard divorced his first wife.

"But," they murmured today, "Mrs. Leonard would run in and tell us of fights and goings on we were not interested in."

The Leonards have a son in Rutland. He was born of the first Mrs. Leonard. He is Roy Leonard, about thirty years old. He is in charge of the Rutland stone crusher.

He hurried here today, following news of his father's death.

Leonard was deputy sheriff of Rutland county. He had been in that position off and on for twenty years; had, in fact, done little else. Since prohibition he has been an active enemy of booze runners and liquor violators. When the news of his death came Wallingford residents said he had been shot by an enemy from outside.

Head Selectman Fales, however, after an investigation, said: "I find no indication that the shot which killed Leonard was fired from outside the house."

The Leonards occupied a comfortable home. It was of the one and one-half story type, well furnished.

Years ago, at the time of his divorces, it was said today, the present Mrs. Leonard figured in the marital disagreement.

Where the first Mrs. Leonard is now located is not known.

Acting Governor Davidson Reverses Decision, but the U. S. Must Assume Responsibility

Austin, Tex., Jan. 19.—Acting Governor T. W. Davidson today acquiesced in the request of President Obregon of Mexico for permission to transport troops across Texas soil, reversing his decision of Friday at the urgent request of Secretary of State Hughes.

In a telegram to Washington, acting Governor Davidson said 2,500 Mexican Federal troops would be permitted to enter near El Paso, provided the American government assumed the responsibilities for any damages resulting.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 19.—Fifteen hundred Mexican troops at Naco, Ariz., awaiting authorization to pass through American territory, bear wounds of battle, received in clashes with revolutionary forces in the vicinity of Guadalajara.

They are well equipped and show but little sign of fatigue. Some field and Enfield rifles are part of their equipment, and large stores of ammunition are carried by the troop train.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Government officials continued their study of the Mexican situation today, with particular attention to the rebel attempt to blockade Tampico, while the cruiser Richmond approached Vera Cruz to take aboard the 248 members of the crew of the wrecked Tacoma, who are ashore in that city under protection of American Consul Wood.

The Cabinet devoted most of its attention to the Mexican problem but after the session it was asserted at the White House that no difficulties were expected by President Coolidge to develop in the situation around Tampico, which is held by the De La Huerta forces.

Whether the Richmond will take aboard Captain Sharrow and the forty-eight men still on the Tacoma has not been made known. It is thought, however, that some navy personnel will be kept on the strand ed ship pending completion of wrecking or salvaging operations.

His sat in the Bertillon room at police headquarters today, just out of a Maine logging camp.

"Yes, I stole. Why? Well!" his dark eyes roved from the floor to the wall. "I just got into the habit of spending money. It started, I guess on account of my marriage.

I married in August, 1922. Two months later I stole the first money. Why? You ask why?

"It seems simple. I handled about $15,000 a day for Baker, Young & Company. They paid me $30 a week. I had to be well dressed myself and support a wife and home Can it be done? It can't.

"Why, do you know what I found out in Maine? That I was far better off earning $60 a month and found in a lumber camp, than $30 a week in a banking house.

WARNS BANKERS

"I'm not sore. In fact, I'm mighty sorry I stole as I didn't realize it had amounted to as much as it does But let me tell you." He stopped and levelled a forefinger at the reporter.

"Thees bankers better wake up and either stop paying such miserable salaries or stop putting temptation in the way of boys like myself. I don't say it as an alibi, just a bitter experience.

"You can't support a wife and dress for a banking house job on $30 a week these days. It is simply impossible."

He stopped and gazed out a window toward the old gray courthouse.

"Did they tell you I tried to make restitution?" Well I did. As a matter of fact I paid back about $13,000 of the $19,000.

"And up in Maine when I get my first pay, it was for a month, $60, I sent Baker, Young and Company, twenty-five per cent. of it. I would like to explain, but it's too late now. They given me time. It would have taken a long while of course. But—"

His quivering lips trailed off.

"It was kind of tough leaving my wife. No, she didn't cry. She wanted to come, but it's no good time for the new arrival. She clung a little, but, well I'll face it alone. It's tough though to think about being away from your wife when the first baby comes. We wanted it so much, too."

He stood up and for the first time it was revealed that his clothes were worn. The pockets showed wear, his shoes were scraped and a bit run down, his hat was rusty and his overcoat proved to be a plaid mackinaw, also a bit frayed. A worn smile flicked across his face.

ALL FOR HER.

"Funny, isn't it, rather ironical," he said. "I was never so happy until I married, yet never had the temptation to steal until then. I wanted her to have so much, a nice home and car and that's what I got.

"I bought a place in Malden, a nice little car and a few good securities. No, I didn't gamble. Taking it little by little didn't seem to make it amount to much. When I discovered that what the thefts had grown I was dumbfounded.

"Then I got the house, machine and securities back. I turned them over willingly. Also my savings."

A detective entered to take Stevens to Superior Court to be arraigned. He shot out a brawny hand, gripped the reporter heartily. "Save the wife as much as you can," he said, and departed. He had refused to say who she was before her marriage other than she was a Maine girl.

"A manly-looking kid," said a veteran officer. "It's tough when they go wrong."

CARL L. STEVENS

CITY OFFICIAL ACCUSED OF MAIL FRAUD

Charge Four Prominent Lowell Men Sold Stocking Knitter That Wouldn't Work

Lowell, Jan. 19.—A city official and three business men were in court today in connection with a mail order selling scheme.

Before United States Commissioner Walsh, Superintendent of Streets Henry P. Doherty, Edward R. Tryon, president of the Tryon Stocking Company, F. G. Leary and W. C. Gray were charged with fraudulent use of the mails.

The case was continued to February 2.

It is alleged that Doherty and the others instituted an extensive mail order campaign advertising for sale a patented stocking knitter which could be operated at home. The complainants alleged that the company agreed to buy the finished product from those persons who purchased machines.

The machines failed to come up to the advertised specifications, it is alleged.

$19,000 THEFT

tober 1, 1922, and November, 1923, it is charged. It was stolen by means of raising vouchers. If a salesman went on a trip and put through a voucher for $48, as an example, it was increased to read $248.

"What did you do with the money?" police asked Stevens.

"Well, I bought a $4,000 house, then spent a lot making it over," he is alleged to have replied, "then bought an automobile."

The car and house, also some securities which the police say they suspect Stevens played the market, have been turned over to the bonding company which made good the alleged shortage.

Stevens, police say, helped expert accountants to audit the banking house books when the money was discovered missing, and freely pointed out the alleged peculations.

He went to the Maine lumber camp, it is said, not to flee prosecution but to earn more money to support his wife and expected baby.

His arrest was asked by the bonding company and one member of the Baker Young and Company firm, police say.

Stevens is boyish looking, well built with apple cheeks and the sparkle in dark eyes one would have after healthy work in the open.

MRS. LEWISHON TO BARE HER STORY OF LOVE TRIANGLE IN BOOK

Pretty Girl in Strange Charge Against Her Mother

"My mother, without any reason except to silence me, tried to get rid of me. It was a wicked plot," says Helen J. Franch.

"Little by little my own mother and W. W. Stevenson tried to break down my will through their hideous conspiracy."

"They had Dr. Cahoon see me, under the pretext of treating me for illness, and I was drugged."

"They put me in a sanitarium, with barred windows at my room. I could not get word to anyone."

"I have suffered vastly more than the million dollars I am asking for this hideous experience."

WILL WRITE SEQUEL TO 'DON JUAN'

Will Give Her Impressions of Him After 18 Years of Wedded Life

New York, Jan. 19.—Don Juan told all the world about his love affair with a "trusting, round-faced" Vermont girl of twenty.

Now Mrs. Don Juan threatens to publish a book and tell her impressions of the "Don," gathered from observing him for eighteen years across the breakfast table.

All of which is the outcome of the separation suit instituted by Mrs. Mary Ludwig Lewishon against her author-husband, Ludwig Lewishon.

The husband is not going to contest the divorce action, but his wife, who herself is an author, will write a sequel to her husband's book, "Don Juan," and tell her side of the story.

Friends of the family declare Lewishon, in his book, accurately describes his own feelings and his own home life.

WIFE'S STORY

Thelma Bowman Spear, twenty-one, is the Vermont girl named by Mrs. Lewishon in her suit. At the Lewishon apartment, today, a woman answered the telephone and obligingly told all about it from the wife's standpoint.

"It all began about September of last year, when this girl, Helen Bowman Spear, wrote a spunk letter to Mr. Lewishon about his book, 'Up Stream.' And then she came on to New York and saw him. No, she isn't pretty, she's short and pudgy, with a moon-round face.

"When Mrs. Lewishon learned that he was taking her to the theatres, to restaurants and about, and once even was told of their having been seen sitting on their knees in Central Park and kissing, she asked him about it.

"She asked him then if he wanted a divorce, but he answered no, that he could never give his wife up, and he sent a letter to the girl telling her so.

SAW GIRL'S MOTHER

"Why, Mrs. Lewishon even went to Vermont to see the girl's mother, she felt so sorry for her—went at her own expense—and the girl was to have been sent to Italy.

"Then Mrs. Lewishon, thinking that everything was all right, came home from California only to find her husband had moved out of their house here and into an apartment that two doors from where this girl lived."

Readers of "Don Juan," the husband's book, point out the unusual parallel between the story of the book and the story of the Lewishon's marital relations.

The hero, thirty-four, after eight years of married life, finds that his love for his wife has grown cold. He has fallen in love with a young girl just as the wife in her suit says Lewishon has done.

The hero asks that his wife divorce him so he may marry the young girl. The wife refuses to do so in the story. Mrs. Lewishon says her husband asked that she divorce him and she refused.

LIFE VACANT

In the novel the hero forsakes his new love, only to find his life vacant without her. He seeks consolation in excesses and an affair with another woman, only to find them hollow in comparison to the future he had depicted with the young woman if his wife had divorced him.

In the opening chapter of the novel the hero, Lurlen Curtis, sums up his wife, Elsie, in the following words:

"She loved him and yet she was unyielding. She had never turned her head to be kissed, or offered to perform some little service for him, or to fetch a book, or hold his coat, or run her fingers through his hair, or put her hands over his eyes, or soothe him with words. She had accepted all the serviceableness of love from him, not only as a matter of course, but with acrid watchfulness."

Mrs. Lewishon says her husband made her an alluring financial offer if she would divorce him. She refused. The wife of the novel says:

"I shall never give you a divorce, never, never while I live. My whole life is bound up with yours. Why should I divorce you? I have done no wrong. It's you that wants to be unfaithful to me. Why should you have what you want? Why should I be left desolate? Why? Tell me that."

"DECENT COLLUSION"

The husband talks over the situation with a friend. The friend speaks of the laws which govern divorce. He says:

"Why, man, look the situation in

LEAPS FROM POLICE AUTO

Gem Thief Suspect Is Recaptured, After Thrilling Daylight Chase in Back Bay

Several hundred people witnessed a thrilling police chase at Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street today when Arnold Nesbit, nineteen, jumped out of a machine in which Special Officer McNabb was taking him to the police station and fled.

McNabb followed, afraid to shoot because of the crowd. Nesbitt turned the corner at Massachusetts avenue, doubled back, and dropped twenty feet to the New Haven track.

Two hundred yards up the tracks he was recaptured by McNabb.

Nesbit, who gives an address in Washington street, is alleged to have stolen a suit case containing $2,000 worth of jewelry from an automobile parked in front of a Boylston street restaurant.

The bag belonged to Ralph W. Pope of Philadelphia, a jewelry salesman.

The case was turned over to Officer McNabb, who recovered much of the loot in pawnshops. Accompanied by Pope, McNabb was walking in Dover street today. Pope pointed out Nesbitt as one of a group he seen hanging around his car before the theft.

McNabb stopped Nesbitt and searched him, finding a number of rings in his pockets. The trio started to drive to the station in Pope's car, but passing the station Nesbitt made his dash for freedom.

SAFE ROBBERS MAKE 4 RAIDS IN SOMERVILLE

Bandits Flee Empty-Handed in Two Places; Get $130 Cash in One of Breaks

Somerville police are investigating four recent visits of safe robbers.

In each case the method of the bandits was the same. Two of the visits proved unsuccessful.

The safe of the Waldo Brothers and Bond Company of Webster street, was tipped over, the combination broken and $126 taken. The Underhill Brothers of Winthrop avenue, reported $800 taken from their safe on December 15.

The thieves revisited the Underhill Brothers last night and broke open the safe, but found it empty.

The Quality Laundry Company of Pearson street and the Franklin Creamery, No. 66 Washington street, were also visited, but nothing was taken, the thieves being frightened away.

BELIEVE RAIL STRIKE IN LONDON AVERTED

London, Jan. 19.—Negotiations for averting the threatened strike of railway locomotive engineers have been satisfactory, it was announced today. It is probable that the strike, which was called for tomorrow night, will be called off.

It is understood that locomotive engineers offered to postpone the strike if the managers of the railway companies would defer operation of the wage award of the National Wage Tribunal. The union accepted the award as well as the companies, but subsequently repudiated it.

Heiress, Put in Madhouse, Sues for $1,000,000, Charging Plot

New York, Jan. 19.—An astounding tale of an alleged plot through which, as she asserts, she was drugged with morphine, spirited away while dazed to two different sanitariums and forcibly detained as a prisoner, was related by Mrs. Helen J. French.

Mrs. French, a dashing brunette of twenty-three, began a suit in the Supreme Court for $1,000,000 damages.

The action is altogether one of the most amazing ever brought in a New York court, both because of the startling nature of the charges and the prominence of the characters involved.

DEFENDANTS NAMED

The defendants are: William W. Stevenson, comptroller for the Mutual Life Insurance Company; Mrs. French's mother, whom she designates in the papers under two names, that of Helen F. Darling and also as Mrs. William W. Stevenson, and Dr. Ira Henry Cahoon, a physician of wide practice.

The pretty Mrs. French alleges that the impelling motive for the alleged conspiracy—which is the charge named against the defendants in their actions—was an effort to force her into silence as to an alleged intrigue which, she says, has existed between her mother and Mr. Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson and Mrs. French's mother live in a fashionable apartment at No. 31 West Eleventh street.

When asked as to Mrs. French's charges, the mother indignantly replied:

"I will not discuss such a monstrous thing."

Both she and Mr. Stevenson, who is a gray-haired, impressive-looking man of some sixty years, denounced the charge of conspiracy as "preposterously false," while Dr. Cahoon, on his part, made a similarly heated denial.

RECOUNTS ESCAPE

Mrs. French's extraordinary action was filed through her attorney, Bennett E. Siegelstein. In support of her amazing tale, the lawyer filed an affidavit of Miss Hazel M. Yorke, a trained nurse of Glenside, Pa., who observed the fascinating Mrs. French while she was in a sanitarium situated on a sequestered farm near Trenton.

The trained nurse figures, in Mrs. French's narrative, in a thrilling escape which Mrs. French alleges she made from a sanitarium near Trenton last Tuesday night, after being incarcerated there since December 27.

In her recital of the alleged conspiracy, Mrs. French, who resides in an uptown hotel and is heiress, according to her lawyer, to an appreciable estate left by a grandfather, declares that the plot to imprison her in a sanitarium had its inception a year ago, when she was living with Mr. Stevenson and her mother at the sumptuous Eleventh street apartment.

In her action Mrs. French alleges that Mr. Stevenson's real wife, from whom, she says, he never obtained a divorce, lives with their children at the Park Lane Hotel.

DRUG ADDICT CHARGE

The pretty plaintiff asserts that as a part of the alleged conspiracy her mother and Mr. Stevenson attempted, with the aid of Dr. Cahoon, to make a drug addict of her, so as to keep her under their control.

Says Mrs. French in her remarkable affidavit:

"When I came to live with my mother about a year ago in the West Eleventh street house, I immediately found that Dr. Cahoon was a daily and nightly visitor.

"The doctor's treatment consisted of injecting morphine as well as other ways of prescribing.

"They tried to get me to become a drug addict—both mother and Dr. Cahoon, as well as Mr. Stevenson, which I naturally refused. Because I remonstrated with them that it was an outrageous piece of work and that I would inform the authorities I was kept a prisoner at home for months at a time.

"When least expected an injection of morphine would be given me by Dr. Cahoon.

"I became virtually out of my mind from the treatment of these various hypo injections.

FEARED EXPOSE

"I observed that what was going on was wrong. When I threatened to disclose it, it was then that they began to make me irrational, make me appear crazy and a drug addict.

"In April of last year, without my knowing it, I was, under the pretense of being examined for a supposed illness, a cold, forced down by Dr. Cahoon and given a hypodermic injection."

"The next thing I knew I was at Dr. Comb's sanitarium at Corona, L. I., and I learned afterward that I was taken there by the doctor, in Mr. Stevenson's car, and his chauffeur. While there Dr. Cahoon forced me to sign some papers, the contents of which I never knew.

"I was kept there—all liberties being restrained—for nearly two and a half months and all the bills were paid for by Mr. Stevenson. When I came out we went over to Allenhurst, N. J., where Mr. Stevenson had some time before purchased a house in the name of Helen E. Darling. There conditions continued as before."

Frank W. French, the young woman's husband, told reporters that he and his wife had been living apart for more than a year and that he did not know of her having been confined in a sanitarium for mental trouble.

EX-STUDENT IS HELD AS FUR THIEF

Former R. I. College Man on Probation After 17 Coats Are Stolen

Fur coat thieves have been looting carnival at Harvard. Seventeen valuable fur coats have been stolen from students' dormitories.

A counter-attack by the police resulted in the arrest of Burton F. Londoner, twenty-one, of Addington street, Brookline, on the charge of theft of one of the missing coats.

Londoner, a former student at Rhode Island State College, was in East Cambridge Court today and placed on probation until April 5. The police learned he was already on probation on a larceny charge in Brookline.

FIND CONROY GUILTY IN NEEDHAM QUARREL

George Conroy of Cleveland road, Needham, and Howard Stanwood, son of the Needham town treasurer, were befor Judge Sanborn in Dedham Court today charged with assault. Conroy was found guilty and the case continued for disposition. Stanwood was found not guilty. The fight was the outcome of an argument in the railroad station at Needham, when Conroy, it is alleged, hit Stanwood.

TROTSKY'S INFLUENCE VANISHING

Spectacular Figure of the Red Revolution Fights to Retain His Leadership

Moscow, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.).—With his indomitable fighting spirit weakened by sickness, Leon Trotzky, Commissar for War in the Soviet government, and one of the most spectacular figures of the revolution, struggled today to retain his place as head of the Red army.

Trotzky's official life was hanging by a slender thread, following a resolution aimed at him by the Federal Communist Conference.

Trotzky is accused of stirring up factional strife in the Communist party and attempting to inculcate in Russian youth principles antagonistic to tenets of the Communists.

Leon Trotsky Nicolai Lenin

Trotzky has been granted two months' leave of absence on account of ill health and it is generally believed he will never return to his old post.

So far as known, Lenin is not playing an active part in the party strife owing to his own ill health.

Leaders of the stand-patters in the Communist party have made a series of recommendations to offset the work of the insurrents led by Trotsky.

They suggest the immediate recruiting of 100,000 new Communists from the working classes, fresh disciplinary measures to prevent future "party outbreaks," and a system of education among the younger Communists to instill in them the teachings of Lenin.

BAXTER PLEADS FOR ANIMALS IN MOVIES

Augusta, Me., Jan. 19.—As one who is "interested in the humane cause," Governor Percival P. Baxter today wrote Will H. Hays, head of the motion picture industry, asking that he listen to the plea that is being made to him in behalf of "our dumb animal friends."

Golf Tourney Today in Florida? No! in Springfield

Springfield, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.).—The Springfield Country Club conducted a golf tournament this afternoon on the links at West Springfield. This is the first time in the history of the city that a golf tournament was held during the month of January.

There is no sign of snow or ice about the links and the grass is turning green as a result of recent warm rains.

LIBERALS FIGHT PROMOTION OF COL. MAJOR

Three-Hour Battle in Senate Committee Before Vote in Favor of Edwards' Enemy

Washington, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.).—Liberal members of the Senate, headed by Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, today threatened to make war against the promotion of Lieutenant-Colonel Duncan K. Major, arch enemy of Major-General Clarence R. Edwards and other conspicuous officers of the old Yankee Division.

The Senate Military Affairs Committee voted, eight to four, to confirm the promotion of Major to a colonelcy.

The line-up on the Major case in the Military Affairs Committee was as follows:

For Major—Wadsworth, New York; Warren, Wyoming; Bursum, New Mexico; Green, Vermont; Reed, Pennsylvania; George, Georgia; Bruce, Maryland, and Cameron, Arizona.

Against Major—Walsh, Massachusetts; Brookhart, Iowa; Capper, Kansas, and Ralston, Indiana.

Present, but not voting—Sheppard, Texas. Absent—Johnson, California, and Fletcher, Florida.

Senator Walsh was joined in the fight against Major in the committee by Senator Brookhart, one of the most intimate associates of La Follette in Washington.

Brookhart is a veteran of both the Spanish and World Wars, was a prominent officer and is now president of the National Rifle Association.

A fight lasting three hours took place in the committee before the vote in favor of Major.

Major is a member of Pershing's staff and has the support. The fight was fought in the committee principally by Senator Wadsworth, chairman of the committee, and the veteran Senator Warren of Wyoming, father-in-law of Pershing.

Senator Walsh said today he would look over the situation before deciding which way he will vote in the Senate.

The next fight will take place in the Senate, possibly on Monday or Tuesday. Action will be secret, following the custom of closed session on confirmations.

Whether Generals Edwards, Cole and Logan, who bore the brunt of Major's hostility, will come to Washington to discuss the situation was not known today.

His daughters are: Margaret Livingston of Boston; Mary L. Livingston of North Grafton; Caliber ine McKenny and Grace Corbett of Woburn.

VICTIMS GET 50 CENTS ON DOLLAR

Jones & Baker Company to Make a Partial Settlement on $3,000,000 Claims

New York, Jan. 19.—Federal Judge Goddard today approved the terms of settlement offered by Jones & Baker, the largest brokerage house on the New York Exchange, which failed last May.

The creditors, who number thousands, will receive fifty cents on the dollar in cash at once on total claims of $3,000,000.

It is estimated by the receiver, Alfred C. Ore, Jr., that the sale of certain securities later will net the creditors 22 or 34 cents on the dollar additional.

Approval of the offer was opposed by Assistant District Attorney Crawford who insisted that insufficient provision had been made for payment of the government's tax claim against the partners of the firm which total $500,000.

Judge Goddard stipulated that approval of the offer should be no bar to criminal prosecution by state or federal authorities.

The company operated a branch on Devonshire street, Boston.

CHALLENGE MELLON ON OWN TAXES

Senator Couzens Dares Treasurer to Reveal What He Will Save Under the New Plan

Washington, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.).—A direct challenge to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to tell the public how much he is worth and how much he personally would save under the reduction of surtaxes proposed in the Mellon tax reduction program was issued today by Senator James Couzens, Republican, Michigan.

Senator Couzens wrote Mr. Mellon a letter, declaring that he, Couzens, had revealed the extent of his wealth and the taxes he had paid, and his felt it was no more than fair that Mr. Mellon should do the same.

The Michigan senator also renewed his challenge to the secretary to engage in a public debate with him on the merits of the Mellon tax plan, proposing that they hire a hall and go fifty-fifty on expenses. Couzens originally made this offer a week ago, but it was ignored in the reply that Mr. Mellon sent to him.

In his letter today, Senator Couzens warmly disputed the figures and argument advanced by Mr. Mellon in support of the Mellon program, and accused the secretary of making "absolute misstatements."

CHALLENGE TO MELLON.

"So long as you have entered into the record of my securities," said Couzens, "will you please tell us what your securities are, how much you own of each and how much you will benefit by the reduction of surtaxes as proposed by you?

"You refer to newspapers saying that all my capital is now in tax exempt securities and you assume that it is true because I have not denied it. Certainly I cannot enter into a denial of everything the newspapers print, but I wish to point out to you that such a statement is absolutely untrue—that I have millions of dollars invested in buildings, real estate and building operations. I ask if this is more productive than money invested in distilleries and breweries.

"I do not know why it is necessary to tell absolute untruths in saying that my wealth is all in tax exempt securities and that I pay no tax. I have already paid out some of the taxes I have paid and there are some years, of course, when my losses have exceeded my taxable income.

GAVE MUCH TO CHARITY.

"In addition I gave to hospitals and crippled children in 1919 nearly 400 shares of Ford motor stock of a market value of nearly $2,000,000 on which I was receiving 35 per cent. dividends on par value of $400,000, or $140,000 per year, on which I could readily have paid a 50 per cent. income tax and had a comfortable income besides.

"I do not want in any way to convey the impression that I am ashamed of the fact I have been a large purchaser of State and municipal bonds. A considerable part of these were Detroit city bonds, which I took at a time when there was difficulty in securing the money needed for schools, sewers and other essential public works."

PERFORMS TOILET IN OFFICE

Finally He Lets Friend Lure Her Away From Him as Matter of Protection

The stenographer has told how the business offices of Boston are filled with men constantly seeking to ensnare them into love affairs. Today the American prints another of a series of interviews with Boston business men.

Are the men always to blame? Read these stories of actual experiences of Boston employers and learn the man's side.

By A BOSS.

If red's a danger signal, then red-haired women carry their own warning. And subtle are the ways of the female in any case. When a man needs a stenographer he needs one as badly as a drowning person needs a raft.

I was in that predicament or sure-ly I would have headed nature's guiding and not hired a red-haired beauty. At first I didn't notice that she was especially good looking. My wife probably wouldn't believe that, but it's a fact.

She was a capable young person and I had no fault to find. One day I came back from lunch and walked into my office. I wear rubber heels—not for the reason the hotel detective wears them, but because they "save the shocks that tire you out." My silent approach brought me face to face with a picture.

A white foot, unshod and unstockinged, swung there unconcernedly. I coughed in embarrassment. My red-haired hireling whirled around on my swivel chair. Suspended from one hand was a stocking, and then I noticed that on the floor was another stocking evidently just discarded.

A delicate flush enhanced the fair one.

HOLE IN THE SOCK.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she apologized in apparent confusion. But she made no attempt to conceal the naked limb. "There was a hole in my stocking and I was just changing them. I didn't expect you to be back so soon."

"I alright! 'S alright!" I assured her, beating a retreat.

In three minutes she appeared properly clad. Naturally I glanced at her ankles.

Our little world proceeded undisturbed for another week. I was to keep an appointment which I expected would hold me away from the office for at least two hours. It didn't. I was back in an hour and three-quarters.

In my office there is the usual closet with washing facilities—and since I employed women, a mirror. This time as I entered my office my radiant "help" stood, apparently surprised, with her brilliant tresses cascading over her shoulders in a flattering frame of her face which I noticed then was very pretty.

THE VAMPING STARTS.

"You weren't due back," she glanced at a wrist watch, "for fifteen minutes. I thought I'd tidy myself up. My hair was so mussed it made me nervous."

"Oh, that's all right. Don't hurry!" I withdrew until the lady had completed her toilette.

Once again things went on in an orderly manner.

A slow day came. There wasn't much doing round the place and the Titian who guarded my gates and I did chat.

"Men with dark hair and dark eyes always fascinate me," she informed me.

I have black hair and brown eyes.

"Personally I admire very Blonde women." I was a bit nasty that time.

"Tall men attract me. They seem so much more vital unless they're too thin."

DIPLOMATIC MOVE.

I am five feet eleven and weigh 185. But of course I modestly put no personal reference to her declaration.

She gave me a tilted aere of look and inquired demurely: "Don't you like red-haired women ever?"

My policy has always been and will be, "Don't mix business with pleasure," so I had to say, since I am a man of principle, "the only red-haired people I have ever liked have been kids with freckles."

She made a bit of a face and our tete-a-tete ended.

Two days later when a friend of mine expressed great admiration for my beautiful stenog I told him: "If she'll go you can hire her."

He offered her two dollars more a week than I paid her and she went!

CONTESTING SUIT OF WEALTHY HUSBAND

MRS. NELLIE ADELE BROWNING

LAWYER SEEKS EVIDENCE IN 'GAY PAREE'

Mrs. Browning's Attorney in Her Divorce Suit Sails for Europe Today

New York, Jan. 19.—Frank E. Stripe, attorney for Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, was to sail today on the Belganiand for Paris, where testimony will be taken before the Consul-General in the divorce suit brought by Edward W. Browning.

Employes at hotels where Browning alleges his wife lived, will be heard. The actions of Dr. Charles H. Wilen in Paris will also be inquired into. Dr. Wilen is named as the co-respondent. He is a dentist of the Bronx.

The plaintiff will be represented at the hearings by a French attorney.

Stripe said that there would be no hearings before Edward E. McCall referee in the suit, until the return of the commission from Paris.

Browning claims his fortune to be little more than $1,000,000, while his wife insists it is from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. Justice Davis has granted Mrs. Browning $1,000 a month temporary alimony, overruling an alleged ante-nuptial agreement which provided her with only $1,000 a year in case of separation.

TO BARE TANGLE

the face. Take New York State. Divorce is granted only on the so called statutory grounds. That is crazy enough. But what is crazier is this: You can misconduct yourself from the Battery to Dyckman street and be just where you were unless your wife chooses to sue.

"And if the suit isn't brought quick the judge'll say the action had been condoned and refuse to grant a decree.

"The result is that all decent people practice collusion, which on the punitive theory of divorce is forbidden by law."

Both the wife and the father of the hero try to make him break with the young woman. In reply to a tirade from the wife on the love he bears this woman, the hero says:

DEFENDS COURSE

"You start with the assumption, Elsie, that love is evil, that it must be excused and purified by law and by parsonages. But that isn't true. If the impulse of two people toward each other is fresh and strong and mutual, love between them is not impure."

Eventually the book husband leaves his wife and sails for Europe, to seek consolation and possibly a fresh start in solitude.

Those familiar with Lewisohn are wondering if he will leave this country and follow in the footsteps of the husband in the novel.

The book is not dedicated to any one.

Under the treaty the American authorities may search suspected whiskey smuggling ships outside the three-mile limit.

AUTHOR PASSES UP HEROES FOR ONE FRIEND

Miss Marbury's Latest Book a Review of Society, War and World Dignitaries

Abraham Lincoln, George Bernard Shaw, a Pope, Vernon Castle, Victorien Sardou, Barrie, the great war and an assortment of millionaires—surely enough food for hero worship—pass in review in Elisabeth Marbury's new book, "My Crystal Ball" (Boni & Liveright), and she diminishes them all to concentrate her admiration on a woman who belongs more personaly to her and to her life.

As a record of feminine loyalty, the book has its lasting value. In the literature of feminine reminiscences it will be one volume to weight against the many which have filmed the feet of heroes. Miss Marbury kisses one foot and walks on many.

Its more immediate value of today's reading hour is in the gay dexterity with which Miss Marbury dances on the corns of her contemporaries. Mr. Shaw, Mrs. Astor, Mr. Harris, Rena Vivian (to name a few sufferers) may wince, but they may not protest, because the authoress, early in her book, has taken care to step on her own foot first of all.

SUITORS "LAME DUCKS."

This, in an amusing passage of self-revelation in which she makes explanation of her single state (she was born in 1856):

"I can honestly say that I never had a good offer. The best were but anaemic. I attracted all the lame ducks that were lingering about . . . the youths who trailed with me were poor affairs . . . . not one in after life ever demonstrated any real value."

After that she is free to tell the worst she knows about others and she does.

She admired Shaw, for whom she brokered early plays, but her visit to his home does not leave him unscathed when she tells:

"I cannot refer, however, to his home without expressing an ardent admiration for Mrs. Bernard Shaw, who was a widow when Shaw married her. She is so extremely intelligent that at first tha is not a too obvious fact. I often wonder whether she has ever allowed her brilliant husband to discover it. Under her influence Shaw no longer eschewed linen shirts and stiff collars."

SENT CAPTAIN A DRINK.

Of Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, first of that line of hostesses, she remembers only one thing which sounds like parsimony in the telling:

"Her entertainments could hardly be called hilarious. They were tempered in their joy-giving qualities. On one occasion when the champagne was served it was found to be corked, but instead of sending it away, Mrs. Astor said she preferred it corked because it reminded her of white wine."

On the steamship Cascogne Mrs. Aston drank without sharing a certain exquisite Yeuguay until, on a certain evening, she sent the captain a beaker with the remark:

"I beg of you to drink it. I find it gives me a severe headache."

At the end of 350 pages of good, ripping thrust at most of the fabric of the gay life, as it has enveloped her, Miss Marbury comes to the conclusion that she has acquired one thing—a friend.

Princes, plutocrats and personages are scotched, but this one is delineated as completely fair. Miss Marbury has so manipulated the figures in her history of her times that they all bow a little to "Elsie De Wolfe, my friend," to which lady, collaborator of Miss Marbury in her interior decorating ventures, the volume is dedicated.

EAGLE IN ORPHANAGE FIGHTS FOR LIBERTY

New York, Jan. 19.—Three weeks ago a sick, feeble eagle flew weakly into the grounds of the Felician Sisters' Orphanage at Lodi, N. J. The sisters placed it in a wooden cage, smoothed its rumpled feathers and gave it the best of care.

Today the eagle, cured of its ailments and longing fiercely for liberty, beats with its great wings the bars of its wooden cage, screams fiercely and gazes with hungry eyes on the orphan charges of the institution. The sisters have decided it isn't a proper bird for an orphanage. So they have inserted an advertisement in New York papers asking the owner to come and get it.

MARJORIE RAMBEAU

MISS RAMBEAU IN COLLAPSE; PLAY STOPPED

Star's $1,500 a Week Contract Is "Called" After She Gives Weird Performance

New York, Jan. 19 (I.N.S.).—Following her "unsatisfactory performance as the star of "The Road Together," Marjorie Rambeau was under the care of a physician today. It was said her $1,500 a week contract has been "called" and the play taken from the Frazee Theatre by A. H. Woods, the producer.

The show, which at least equals the shortest run in New York, ended with its first night, which amazed both critics and laymen. Reviewers were mystified by Miss Rambeau's difficulty in pronouncing such words as "thermometer and her confused use of pronouns."

At the great dramatic moment of the play, when Miss Rambeau should have made a sad exit as a ruined wife, she tossed her fur cloak about her with uncertain, humorous movements that brought titters from the first nighters.

Martin Hermann, Wood's representative, said the play was ended at the request of the author, George Middleton. Middleton said "the facts speak for themselves." Miss Rambeau said, "I'll let you talk to my doctor."

The doctor said, "Miss Rambeau has been under my care nine days from overwork and is now suffering a complete breakdown."

MAN WITH CASKET MISSING FROM BOAT

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 19.—A man whose name appears on the passenger list of the Old Dominion steamer Jefferson as H. P. Burnett, No. 140 East Thirty-third street, New York, was missing when the vessel docked here. His stateroom was in disorder and in it were found a few coins and a note addressed to the purser.

Burnett, the authorities have been informed, was induced by a New York undertaker just before the ship sailed to take responsibility for a body being sent to this city to meet the legal requirement that such shipments be accompanied in transit by a passenger.

ALASKA WILL PASS LIQUOR FOR YUKON

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 19.—Liquor from Vancouver, B. C., destined to the Yukon Territory, will be allowed to cross Alaska under the terms of the agreement which will be reached at conferences in Ottawa, between representatives of the Canadian and United States Governments, according to information received here by high authorities.

As a return favor, it was said, the Canadian customs officials will be instructed to refuse clearances to small craft loaded with liquor which pretend they are going abroad, although known to be headed for the United States.

HOUSE GROWS COLD; JANITOR FOUND DEAD

Tenants of the Masonic Block in Reading, discovered today that they were not getting any heat. One of them, James Remick, on going to the cellar, discovered the body of the janitor, Robert A. Powers, lying at the foot of the stairs. The body was cold, and to all appearances the man had been dead for some time. Death was due to natural causes.

Powers who lives at 47 Temple street, Reading, was for many years a member of the Reading police department.

KLAN BACKING BREWSTER IN MAINE RACE

Kleagle Farnsworth Takes a Hand in the Gubernatorial Fight; Unite Against Day

Portland, Me., Jan. 19.—That efforts of the Ku Klux Klan to gain a foothold in the State of Maine have not ceased was indicated today when Sen. Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, candidate for the Governorship of the State, denied he was the Klan candidate.

Brewster, long prominent in politics here was warmly backed for nomination by "Kleagle" F. Eugene Farnsworth of the Klan, in an address at Bath. The primaries will be held in June.

Mayor Albert P. Day, Republican, of Bangor, also a candidate for Governor, is opposed by the Klan because he refused to allow them to use the Bangor city hall for their meetings.

William P. Pattingall of Augusta, former attorney-general of the State, and candidate for the Democratic nomination, has announced his opposition to the Klan.

Miss Ellen Greenough Is Bride Today of New York Man, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

"FAIR exchange is no robbery."

Thus say the maids and beaux of Boston and New York when they select their life partners.

For during the past few years it has become quite the usual thing for the Beacon Hill misses to marry New York men, while the youths whom the Beacon Hill misses shook their rattles at some 20 years ago find the Gotham belles most alluring.

Mrs. H. F. Colt (Photo by Bachrach)

Take for instance some of the weddings solemnized during the past year. Dainty Miss Mary Forbes Atkinson, formerly of Brookline is now Mrs. Henry F. Colt of Grammercy Park, N. Y.; Miss Catherine Adams, daughter of the Charles F. Adams, became the June bride of young Henry Sturgis Morgan of New York; Miss Dorothea Amory Codman, formerly of Beacon street, now signs herself Mrs. W. MacNeil Rodewald, Jr., of Tuxedo Park; another June bride was Miss Harriet Kunhardt, who's now Mrs. Felix W. Knauth of New York. And these are only a few.

Mrs. W. M. Rodewald Photo by Bachrach.

Likewise have the betrothals announced within the past year shown that the future will be replete with Boston-New York alliances.

ALL of which brings us to the ceremonial being solemnized at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Trinity Church, when Miss Ellen Greenough becomes the bride of Hardwick Stires of New York.

Miss Mary Greenough Photo by White

In the attending group are the three sisters of the bride, the Misses Mary, Barbara and Ellen Greenough, as well as the Misses Lorna Trafford, Lucy Fiske, Frances Weed and Alice Wetherbee. The recently announced engagement of Miss Trafford to George Owen, Jr., star of the Crimson eleven, caused a considerable flutter of excitement.

Today's bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert B. Greenough of Brookline Mr. Stires is the son of Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires of Gotham's fashionable St. Thomas' Church who is officiating at this afternoon's ceremony.

BOSTON was well represented at the dinner which Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks gave the other evening at the capital, in honor of President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, the John Hays Hammonds of the Gloucester Summer colony and Under Secretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips, who spend much of their time at their Beverly estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, by the way, sailed yesterday for Nassau on board the Munargo.

MISS ELLEN GREENOUGH

Among the few January brides is Miss Ellen Greenough, whose wedding to Hardwick Stires of New York will draw a large and fashionable throng to Trinity Church at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Stefansson to Quit Exploring, Thrills Are All Gone

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—Exploring isn't what it used to be and so Vilhjalmur Stefansson will quit the business.

The noted Arctic explorer, who is here on a lecture tour, said modern inventions, the airship and dirigible, bringing with them ease, safety, comfort and certainty of attainment, have made exploration and discovery more or less hum-drum pursuits.

He expressed the belief that the dirigible airship Shenandoah proved her worth by her recent accident and that she would negotiate her proposed Polar flight without mishap and add the Arctics to the world's map.

IN ITALY IT'S ANTIPASTO THE FRENCH, THEY SAY HORS D'OEUVRE

IN OTHER WORDS, EUROPEANS OFTEN BEGIN a meal with a mixture of tasty relishes—anchovy, celery, stuffed egg, pimento, sardines, and pickles.

LAST SUNDAY NIGHT at a supper party, we were charmed with the appearance of the table. Our hostess had set four slender silver candlesticks at the corners of the square center piece. Blue candles matched the Syrian point edge of the doilies.

ON EACH PRETTY WEDGWOOD plate was arranged a square of toast. A little mound of chopped egg was in the center. On either side of the egg an anchovy; a strip of scarlet pimento lay across the whole. Surrounding the little piece of toast, celery, a stuffed olive and a radish, made one eager to start eating.

OUR HOSTESS GAVE US many new ideas for delightful supper parties. She also told us where to get unusual hors d'oeuvres. Prices, from 20 cents to $1.15. So little is used, that you often have enough left over for another party.

THERE IS A NEW Swedish preparation that is very popular. It is salty and different in flavor. 90 cents.

SOME OF THESE APPETIZERS are in paste form. Easy to spread on bread. Or, mix with your salad dressing. 30 cents, in tubes or tins. Most are imported. Everybody thinks they're delicious.

AFTER THE HORS D'OEUVRES serve something hot. Either in a chafing dish or casserole. Many hostesses like creamed chicken welsh rarebit or chili con carne. They can be bought, all cooked, and only need to be heated. 40 to 60 cents. Made by a very reliable firm.

AN EASY DESSERT that most people like is iced grapefruit. We have found a combination knife-and-pincers. The blade is curved to cut around the outside; the pincers remove the core and sectional divisions. 75 cents.

Answer to A. W. P. There are many ways to serve supper. Let me know how formal you want yours to be.

PRISCILLA PRICE.

COUNT AMAZED BY U. S. GIRL ATHLETES

D'Ornano, on Visit to Boston, Sees Basketball Game at Radcliffe

Count d'Ornano of Paris, on a visit to this country where he is studying political conditions, observed his arrival here by attending a basketball game at Radcliffe College, at which he was startled by the vigor of American young womanhood.

The Count expects to be in Boston for several weeks and while here will be the guest of Dr. Eliza Taylor Ransom of No. 231 Bay State road, at various social activities. He was her guest at a dinner in Eliot Hall, Cambridge, previous to the basketball game.

One of the participants in the game was Miss Virginia Katherine Dodge, daughter of Dr. Irving Dodge of No. 232 Bay State road. The Count met Miss Dodge with Dr. Ransom in Paris two years ago.

At the Boston Athletic Association building, where he is making his headquarters while here, Count d'Ornano told an American reporter he was in America studying political sentiment in this country for his brother who will be a candidate for election to the French Chamber of Deputies next May.

The Count is the youngest son of Marechal Count d'Ornano, grand chancellor of the French Legion of Honor.

WILSON MAKES A GREAT FIGHT BUT DECISION GOES TO GREB

CHAMPION IN FAST FINISH

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Jan. 19.—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh is still world's middleweight champion as a result of his victory over Johnny Wilson, former titleholder, after fifteen rounds of spirited fighting at Madison Square Garden.

Greb's margin was a narrow one and did not meet with the approval of all of the 11,000 persons who witnessed the contest. Many of the fans were of the opinion that Wilson's heavy body punches entitled him to the decision. It was a hard close battle.

The champion's whirlwind finish in the fifteenth round was probably what won for him the verdict of the judges.

The battling was fairly close up to that point of the contest. Wilson was not able to keep up with the pace wh ch the Pittsburgh man set in this session and as a result lost his opportunity to remain his championship.

If the bout had been decided on straight hard fighting, it would have been necessary to have g ven Wilson the decision.

All of the heavy crashing blows which gave those at the ringside a real thrill were scored by Wilson. Greb relied chiefly upon his amazing ability at circling the ring, his knowledge of inside boxing and versatile style of fighting to retain his championship.

After the fifth round Greb kept on the offside of Wilson's extended rights and made it very difficult for Frank Marlow's sturdy pupil to count with his crashing left hand blows to the body.

Wilson did his best fighting during the first five rounds of the contest, he looked particularly brilliant in the second, third and fourth sessions, and he had these rounds by a healthy margin of points.

Johnny would get inside of Greb's defence and score with sharp damaging left and right hand wallops to the body. He repeatedly forced the champion back against the ropes and compelled him to hang on in the clinches.

From the end of the fifth round on, Greb refused to walk in to close quarters and swap blows with Wilson, instead he circled around the ring at a dazzling rate of speed, keeping on Wilson's offside and making it difficult for Johnny to score with his famous left hand body punch.

WILSON MADE THE PITTSBURGER MISS A LOT.

In the seventh, tenth and fourteenth rounds, Wilson was more successful. He made the Greb family man miss a great many healthy blows while he himself, crashed some stiff socks to the body.

The bout was not so spectacular after the fifth round as it had been up to this point, as the champion's refusal to mix things with Wilson resulted in many dreary moments.

Wilson was willing enough to fight, but he couldn't catch up with the fast-moving Greb. When Wilson did land with his stinging left hand wallop to the body, he made Greb wince and hang on.

This is undoubtedly the reason the champion adopted his foot, elusive style of battling after the fifth round.

PROVED HE CAN REDUCE TO THE MIDDLEWEIGHT MARK.

Greb once more proved he can reduce to the middleweight limit of 160 pounds and still be strong. Red Mason's protege scaled Lilly pounds at 2 o'clock, while Wilson weighed 159½.

Both fighters were at their best and had all of their strength when they went forth to action.

Greb fights better when at the middleweight limit than when he battles at catch weights. He is obliged train faithfully to reduce to 160 pounds. This means he is able to show at h s best. Greb's poor fights have been when he has entered the ring scaling around 170 pounds. The bout was witnessed by 11,993 fans. The receipts were $50,737.

GREB GOT $33,000 AND WILSON $5,000.

It is understood that Greb was paid a guarantee of $25,000 and that Wilson got about $5,000 for his services.

Although Wilson lost the decision, he added credit to himself as a fighter. He fought a hard, courageous battle and all but regained his championship. He would have defeated any other fighter in the world, but the marvelous Greb, who one day enters the ring as a middleweight and wins and a few weeks later steps forth and gu sures a great heavyweight like ibbons.

Frank Marlow, Wilson's manager announced after the contest that Johnny was not entirely satisfied with the result and that he would demand another shot at the championship.

The closeness of the title bout makes it very likely that Wilson will receive his wish at a big outdoor show this Summer. Meanwhile, Johnny will keep active in the ring. Jock Malone, Pal Reed, Dave Rosenberg and other middleweight contenders will receive consideration from Wilson.

This writer picked Wilson to win. The dope, however, was badly knocked over by Harry's amazing speed. At post time the speculative gentlemen installed Greb a seven to five favorite and he rode home with their money to victory.

Friedman Anxious to Get Return Go With Sheppard

Abe Friedman, the crack boot boxer, is training hard for another chance at Johnny Sheppard. Friedman was the victim of a close decision the last time they met, and ever since that battle the Ghetto champion has been trying to get a return match with the pride of Woburn.

Friedman, while New England bantamweight king, always gave every contender a chance at the crown, and now he wants Sheppard to give him a return match, on a winner take all basis, or any other way his manager may see fit.

GENARO HAS INDIAN SIGN ON PANCHO VILLA

By RINGSIDE

You will see the greatest little fighting machine in the ring in action when Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion and three-time conqueror of Pancho Villa, clashes with the sensational Johnny Sheppard of Woburn in the feature ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s big show at Mechanics Building on Tuesday night.

Genaro, a dapper Italian-American youth, has proved a rio in the ring. He today stands forth as one of the boxing marvels of all time.

Genaro is twenty-two years of age. He first attracted attention when he won the world's flyweight championship at the last Olympic games. Returning to America, Frankie became a professional boxer. His success has been remarkable.

When Villa first arrived in America he clashed with Genaro in Newark. The popular decision went to the little New Yorker.

Villa claimed he was not acclimated and asked for a return match with Genaro. His request was granted, the contest being staged at Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn. This was a decision match. When the ring midgets completed their tussle the verdict went to Genaro.

Villa then got a "break," as he was matched to battle Johnny Buff for the American flyweight title. The Filipino won the decision and as champion started dodging Genaro.

Villa was finally compelled to clash with Genaro. The contest was held at Madison Square Garden last March. It was a fifteen-round affair. Genaro decisively outboxed Villa and won the title.

Fortune once more smiled upon Villa. He had signed to battle Jimmy Wilde prior to meeting Genaro. Tom O'Rourke, the promoter, was forced to go through with the match with the result that Villa won the world's flyweight championship by stopping the Welshman.

Once more Villa has dodged Genaro. He won't meet the latter in a bout for the world's title. He recently spurned a $50,000 offer for a match with Genaro in New York under the direction of Tex Rickard. Phil Bernstein, Genaro's manager, has accepted terms of a Boston promoter for a bout with Villa. The latter is expected to sign to meet Genaro in Boston, as he thinks he will get a better deal in this city than he would in New York.

If Sheppard wins over Genaro, he will have a match with Joe Lynch for the world's bantamweight championship. Which is something worth shooting for.

WELCH CHAMP TO MEET PAL REED

Negotiations for one of the most important contests of the season were completed when the Union A. A., New Bedford, signed the Welsh champion, Frank Moody, to box the Framingham school teacher, Pal Reed, Monday at the Elm Rink.

ARENA OFFERS A TWIN BILL TONIGHT

A dash of collegiate hockey, as well as a championship game, will be offered at the Arena tonight in a double-header.

George Owen

The Boston Hockey Club will play a United States League game with the Maples and will tackle the St. Nicholas Club of New York.

This double attraction will give fans a chance to see some former Harvard, Yale and Princeton stars in action when the St. Nicks cut loose. Dartmouth is a big power in collegiate hockey and stands an excellent chance to upset the "Big Three" in the remaining games.

Bob Hall, leader of Dartmouth's forces and crafty ice center ice, once wore the St. Nicholas uniform. Dartmouth has a fighting team. The sextet is best when behind.

Coach Leon Tuck has developed a smooth team. Doug Everett, the old Colby Academy star, looks like one of the best college wing men on the ice. This kid knows a lot of hockey.

Big Frank Sheehy, from Dorchester, is another Dartmouth player who will bear watching tonight.

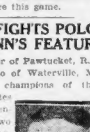
Hockey fans are acquainted with the brilliances of Jabbie Holmes, the old Crimson star. Norman Walker, Bob Baldwin and Roger Buntin are other old Harvard stars in the St. Nick lineup. Jack Sherwin and Dick Townsend are old Yale players, and Jack Cushman played on Hobey Baker's Princeton team.

Condition should count in this game and Dartmouth will have considerable edge in this respect.

Plenty of action should be crowded into the Hockey-Maple game. The last game between these teams was a brisling affair. The Hockey Club won in the last three minutes, 1 to 0. The Maples have shown marked improvement since this game.

BAXTER FIGHTS POLO IN LYNN'S FEATURE

Young Baxter of Pawtucket, R. I., and Eddie Polo of Waterville, Me., bantamweight champions of their respective states, who have engaged in two slashing contests at Lynn this season with honors even, have been rematched for the rubber battle and will meet in the feature bout at the Casino, Lynn next Monday night.



Young Baxter

George Korbis of Peabody has joined the money chasers and will make his professional debut in a six rounder with Willie Rose of Lynn tonight. In the opening six rounder Jack Fitzpatrick of Newton and Micky Roberts of New York will clash.

Rob Lowrie the hard hitting Scotchman who defeated Billy Shannon at the Casino two weeks ago will meet Memphis Kid Green in the semi-final.

WILLIE GRADWELL BUT STILL GOING

Willie Gradwell, the popular Somerville lightweight, is not disappointed by his defeat by Clonie Tate, and he will go right along fighting the other lightweights around New England. It will be easy to get matches for him now as he had no trouble in finding fights around here from local talent that when the promoters would ask any of the so-called New England lightweight champions to box Gradwell, they would refuse him, giving for a reason that he was too tough, but now it may be different.

Willie Gradwell

MATCH TERRY PARKER AND WILLIE SHUGRUE

Manager Johnny Buckley announces that he has matched Terry Parker, his promising Italian bantamweight, to box Willie Shugrue of Waterbury at the Casino A. C., Lynn, Jan. 26. Buckley has had plenty of offers for the former national amateur champion since his clean-cut victory over Tommy Nee, closely after Nee's victory over Johnny Shoppard, who is matched to meet Frankie Genaro.

POLO STATUS STILL IN AIR AT HARVARD

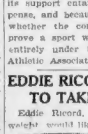
The status of polo at Harvard College is still in a doubtful state, for neither the Athletic Committee nor the Minor Sports Council has taken action on the proposal that it be made an organized minor sport.

In the mean time, while the high officials squabble over the sport, the polo ists are practicing regularly in the Commonwealth Armory.

Major F. W. Moore, graduate treasurer of athletics, has expressed disapproval of the plan of making polo a recognized sport on the ground that it is exclusive, inasmuch as it is not open to all members of the college, but confined to students in the military science course, that its support entails considerable expense, and because it was doubtful whether the committee would approve a sport which would not be entirely under the control of the Athletic Association.

EDDIE RICORD WANTS TO TAKE ON RIVALS

Eddie Ricord, local light heavyweight, would like to get a crack at Aitone, Pat McCarthy or Hamilton Kelly. Ricord feels confident that if given the chance that he will make good and show the Boston fans that he is a real contender for the light heavyweight crown. The former Nashua, N. H., boy made a big hit with the fans when he knocked out Billy Muldoon and gave Whitey Allen two fine lacings, and on form he looks like the real opposite for Ad Stone.



Eddie Ricord

FORT BANKS TEAM BEATS COLLEGIANS

Fort Banks basketball team of Winthrop defeated the College Five of Tufts College, 32-24, at Fort Banks. Fast work featured for the soldier boys.

Boxer to Battle for $1 to Prove He Is Game

New York, Jan. 19.—According to reports, Sid Terris, a local featherweight of national reputation, will receive a "purse" of $1 for engaging in a bout with Johnny Lisse next Monday night. Terris was counted out at Madison Square Garden recently while claiming a foul at the hands of Eddie (Kid) Wagner, and immediately was accused of quitting. In order to disprove the charge, he is said to have offered to fight Lisse for nothing but the management of the Lenox Sports Club insisted upon the payment of the dollar to make the contract binding and legal.

ABBOT WORSTED ELEVEN PLAYS FALL RIVER

Abbot Worsted will clash this afternoon with Fall River on the Coats Field, Pawtucket, R. I. This is a semi-final attraction of the Eastern division of the New England section of the United States Football Association and the game is slated for 3 o'clock.

Leo Hughes

When these two teams lineup soccer history will be made. Both clubs have been prominent in New England for a long time. Fall River won the national championship in the season of 1916-1917 when they beat Bethlehem Steel F. C. at Pawtucket.

Abbot Worsted has been a keen contender also in soccer circles.

Forge Village will send down a special train of rooters and Fall River will move onto Pawtucket en masse. It is in anticipation of this big attraction that the gates are being opened so promptly.

Following is the list of eligible players from whom the teams will be chosen:

Abbot Worsted, F. C.—James Farquhar, William Kelley, David Neil, Lawrence Kane, Thomas McBride, Frederick G. Watkins, Thomas Conroyce, John Dundee, Dan Cunningy, Joseph Crockart, Hugh O'Neill, John Davidson, Charles McDermott, William Low, James Gilpatrick, Peter Farquhar, Robert Neil.

Fall River, F. C.—Edward Tate, John Reid, Alex Kemp, Doyle Campbell, Henry McGowan, William McPherson, Harry Kerr, Harold F. Britton, William Cunningham, Alexander Lorimer, Frank McKenna, William Orr, Fred Moller, Thomas Ritchie, Francis Higgins.

The officials are—Referee—George Isaacs of Newton. Neutral linesmen—John Carlin, Central Falls, R. I., and Arthur Gall of Georgetown, R. I. Financial delegate—William Patrick of Seymour, N. J. Field delegate—Andrew M. Brown of Bayonne, N. J. United States Football Association representative—Thomas W. Cahill of Newark.

KENMORE EXCHANGE PLAYS ROSE CROIX

The Kenmore Telephone Exchange five will play a visit to the strong Rose Croix Knights of Columbus team at Roxbury High school gym tonight. These two outfits will use their best teams. The telephone team will be: Hickey, Leahy, Donavon, Hannan, Bulger, Sullivan and Kienan.

MALONE PROVES EASY WINNER OVER TODD

Jock Malone took eight of the ten rounds and the decision from Roland Todd, middleweight champion of England, in the main bout at Mechanics Building. The elusive St. Paul batter had the Indian sign on the Britton and gave him a terrific body beating.

Jock Malone

Jock tried to finish the British champion, but found an adversary well versed in self defence. Todd was on the defence most of the time and exposed himself only on a few occasions.

He failed to prove to be the infighter advanced reports would have us believe.

Malone threw science to the wind and directed his attack to Todd's body. Todd worked a left jab and looked exceptionally good in the opening rounds.

A stinging left hook over the heart in the second round sent Todd to the mat. He was up with a spring and clinched with Malone, who tried hard to throw him off and put over the finish to the body.

The Englishman showed the effects of this body lacing that he took. Malone centered his attack to the body and ripped in stinging right and lefts to the stomach that made the Britisher wince with pain.

Malone paraded out front and took all sorts of chances with the one desire to get over the telling punch.

Todd changed his style of boxing in the fifth and went on the offensive. He popped left hooks to Malone's head and forced the St. Paul batter around the ring. Malone tried hard to hold off the Englishman and used his left for the attack but the rally came too late in the rounds.

Realizing that his opponent made a supreme effort, the St. Paul battler changed his tactics and adopted boxing tactics at which game he was far superior to Todd. His left jabs to the head damaged Todd's nose and mouth, which bled profusely.

Malone had Todd in a bad way in this and the eight round.

Malone never gave Todd a chance to show his wares in the ninth and tenth rounds. In the last both boys fought furiously and the going was even if not a shade in favor of Todd.

Jimmy Boy Finigan gave Joie Fox of England a whipping for eight rounds in one of the most spirited semi-final bouts staged in this city. The southpaw style of the Dorchester lad proved a stumbling block to Fox the former featherweight champ from the British Isle.

Larry Malia of South Boston was the victor easily over Joe Munroe of Charlestown. Mickey Blain of Cambridge defeated Barney McAtee in eight rounds.

William McDermott and John Ginchio were the judges, Jerry Moore refereed the preliminaries, and Jack Sheehan the main bout.

RENAULT MATCHED TO BATTLE SMITH

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 19.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, has been matched with Homer Smith of Kalamazoo for a ten round bout here February 8.

EAGLE RUNNERS OUT TO HELP RYDER TO OLYMPIC BERTH

B. C. TEAM PICKED TO WIN BIG "Y" MEET

Coach Jack Ryder will let the world have a peek at his charges for the first time this Winter when the Eagle outers thirty-one men tonight in the annual Y. M. C. A. games. B. C. has won these games for the last three years and, despite the absence of Pat Mahoney, Phil Dillon and Bob Merrick, is looked upon as an easy winner again.

Joe McKenney.

The meet, which is the first of B. C.'s indoor schedule, will be a conditioner for the approaching K. of C. games. Ryder has had his men out on the board track now for two months and is confident that his entries will be the best of advertisements for an appointment to the Olympic coach berth.

Lermond, captain-elect of cross-country, has lowered his distance to the mile for tomorrow's meet. The youngster is one of those favored by an invitation to compete in the special two-mile run at the Millrose games.

Clarence Flahive, who has jumped better than six feet three in recent trials, is the other hockey individual. Ryder has not yet decided on the chance of a relay to succeed the quartet which established record time last year. The loss of Mahoney and Dillon has thrown all his plans to the winds.

Tomorrow's appearances will no doubt move him to select his final entries. The men entered in the Y. M. C. A. games are:

Forty-yard dash—A. K. Forrest, W. Daley, D. Donovan, J. Connor, F. Hurley, F. White, J. McKenney, J. Sullivan, W. J. Sullivan.

Forty-five-yard low hurdles—J. Mullin, J. P. Murphy, F. Riha, E. Berechor, D. Welch, J. Duane.

Three-hundred-yard dash—D. Donovan, J. P. Sullivan, F. L. White, J. Crelahy, J. J. Sullivan, J. J Kelley, W. Mullin run—A. Kirley, W. Mc. at ... G. O'Connor, L. Welch, H. deg ... egan.

One mile run—T. Cavanaugh, T. ... Clunky, G. Lermond.

High Jump—C. Flahive, J. Flahive, ... Mullin, D. Welch.

Shot-put—T. Gallagher, O. Murphy, D. Linehan.

EAGLE'S BASKET TEAM PLAYS TRINITY

With three games played and won, the Eagle basketball squad flies to Hartford, Conn., today to battle the Trinity College tossers.

Art. Mosley

The B. C. floorman base their hopes of a successful season on their performance in the opening games, and seek to go undefeated until the objective game with Holy Cross is played.

The first of the series with the Purple will be in Boston Feb. 9.

The Trinity sextet is one of the fastest in New England.

Those who will accompany Coach Coady and Manager J. Burke Sullivan are: Captain Jim Hickey, Ed Harrison, Frank Mooney, Bill Meisley, Tom Murphy, Andy Carroll and Ed Mockler.

BOSTON "Y" HAS BIG TEAM IN TRACK MEET

The Boston Y. M. C. A. will have a strong squad of athletes in the big meet at the gym on Huntington avenue tonight. Patnode, Swanson and Ramsay will wear the "Y" in the forty-yard dash.

Ramsay and Patnode will also start in the 300-yard run. Mock is entered in the 880 run. Sullivan, former schoolboy star, will show in the mile run.

In the field events Snow will compete in the running high jump, and Brown in the hurdles. Ried may put the shot.

The relay team will be picked from Patnode, Ramsay, Brown, Farmer, Swanson and Mock.

URBAN SHOCKER GOES BACK TO THE BROWNS

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Financial settlement proposed by the Browns induced Urban Shocker to withdraw his plea for permission to become a free agent, according to belief prevalent here after announcement that the controversy had been adjusted.

The $1000 fine imposed on the star hurler when he left the Browns last season, and back salary, are understood to have been paid Shocker.

Commissioner K. M. Landis said he understands that St. Louis reimbursed the pitcher.

Shocker, with his wife, called on Landis and withdrew his petition and announced that he had reached an agreement with the club.

The difficulty developed out of Shocker's demand that he be allowed to take his wife on an eastern tour.

TARAMASCHI TO GO AGAINST STRANGLER

Ed Strangler Lewis will risk his title again at the Grand Opera House next Thursday night. Angelo Taramaschi, the world's greatest Italian wrestler, will get the acid test. He has defeated all comers since coming to Boston, and has convinced the fans that he has the goods.

Since coming to Boston he has insisted that all his matches must be to a positive finish. He don't want to run up a long string of victories by winning handicap and time limit events.

He wants a decision at each bout in which he appears and has made a decided bit with the crowd by taking this stand.

Pitted against Lewis it will be the first time an Italian grappler has appeared in a championship bout in Boston in a long time. Gardini had this distinction a few years ago and now it's up to Angelo to uphold the honor of the Italian grapplers. Taramaschi feels sure he has a good chance to beat Lewis as he has always felt he could defeat Alvarez and after he saw the match between Lewis and Panama Joe last Thursday night was more than anxious to go through with the match.

The management has signed Joe Alvarez to appear on the card also. He has been matched to meet Alex Ben Ali, the Syrian Tiger, in a one-fall semi-final bout. In his match with Lewis last Thursday he did everything but beat the champion.

In another bout on the card Jack Albright, the man with the thousand holds, will meet Justianio Silva, the Portuguese champion. Silva has many followers in the North End, Cambridge and Chelsea.

TUFTS ENTERS 14 IN THE SEVERAL EVENTS

"Watch us go" is the cry at Tufts as 14 Brown and Blue cinder path performers are entered.

Coach Bill Meanix hopes to start a crack relay quartet against Northeastern.

It will be the first time since the war that Tufts has entered a track team in any meet. The Meanix coached Jumbos are out to make a name for themselves and prospects look bright.

This will give Meanix his first opportunity to watch his athletes against other college stars.

Morgan Haines, Clarence Allen, Henry Jeffress and Fred Littlefield will wear the Brown and Blue in the relay race.

Bart Macchia and John Doherty will also wear the Tufts colors in the middle distance events, and Edwin Gamage and Tech Black are entered in the short distant races.

Boston Stars Play Laconia

The Boston All Star five will meet a tough foe tonight when they stack up against the Laconia A. A. and fancy high diving, on June 7. The women's swimming trials are scheduled in New York during the week ending July 14.

STAR AMATEURS FOR BOSTON TEAM

The strongest team that ever represented Boston in an amateur boxing tournament has been selected to meet the stars of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Mechanics Building on Monday night in the annual N. E. A. A. U. tri-city tournament.

The Boston team follows.

112 lbs.—Sam Fuller, Boston; Mike Melinsky, West End.

118 lbs.—Johnny Moore, North End; Eddie Zine, South End.

125 lbs.—Bob "Red" Griffin, Chelsea; Val Fernandes, Roxbury.

Mallo, the boy from the Spindle City, is the sensation of the amateur ranks. He defeated Joe Minehan at the Dilbey Post show, Somerville.

In addition to the tri-city classes, there will be three other divisions.

CHARLES MAHER IS WINNER AT BILLIARDS

Charles Maher pulled the biggest surprise of the tournament for the three-cushioned billiard championship of New England at the State Billiard Club, when he defeated Charles Warren, 50 to 32.

Warren was slow to start, while Maher played consistent and, at times, fortunate billiards. Each had a high run of 4 and the game was completed in 24 innings.

Dorchester Climbs Into First Place

By FRED C. LANE.

Dorchester High's hockey team replaced Mechanic Arts as leader of the Boston High School Hockey League at the Arena today by trimming the Machinists, 1 to 0, in a hotly contested game. Commerce High was victor over English, 2 to 1, while Brighton scored a 2 to 0 win over South Boston.

Mechanic Arts played a stubborn battle and were dangerous at all times. The first period ended with neither team scoring a tally. Both teams were on the defence throughout the greater part of the second period. The score might have been goose eggs for both sides but for a bit of poor goal tending by Wright, who allowed a feeble shot by Goldfine to pass between his legs in this period.

The Commerce-English game was a spirited one. At one time during the second period Commerce had two men in the ball pen cooling off, while English had one. Levy scored his first goal for Commerce on a rebound in the first period. Trainor for English evened the count with a goal from scrimmage.

Levy and McPhail skated through the entire English team in the second period on different occasions and if their team out front, a lead that English was never able to overcome.

Brighton High found South Boston an easy opponent and scored three tallies with ease. Walsh of south Boston played his usual fast game, but found it impossible to penetrate the Brighton defence.

The teams lined up as follows:

DORCHESTER.		MECHANIC ARTS.
Mantoff, Moulton, rw	lw, Melchert

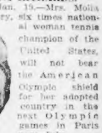
MOLLA CANNOT PLAY FOR AMERICA

By VINCENT RICHARDS.

New York, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, six times national woman tennis champion of the United States, will not bear the American Olympic shield for her adopted country in the next Olympic games in Paris next July.



Mrs. Mallory.

All hope that the famous Norsewoman, who developed her tennis play to international heights in this country, would represent America at the Olympics was lost when officers of the United States Lawn Tennis Association were notified that Mrs. Mallory had been declared ineligible to represent the United States by the International Olympic Committee.

This ruling is based upon a clause of the rules and regulations of the Olympic games which declares that an athlete who has represented a country in Olympic competition cannot change at a later date his or her allegiance and represent another nation.

The specific ruling in Mrs. Mallory's case hinges upon her play in the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912 when, as Molla Bjurstedt, a girl still in her teens, she played for Norway and won third prize in the Olympic singles of that year.

It was the hope of the American tennis enthusiasts that because she had made this country her home for almost a decade and by the course of her marriage to an American citizen, that the Olympic rule might be construed liberally in her case.

It is apparent, however, that the International Olympic Committee had decided that the rules must be applied according to the law and without regard to the present home of the athlete or player under consideration. The final decision from the supreme tribunal of the Olympic committee, it is expected, will change Mrs. Mallory's plans for competition in the world's great meet.

Although Mrs. Mallory is not eligible to represent the United States, she is eligible to play for Norway and that nation has asked her to represent it at the Olympic games. Although the former American champion has not expressed final determination upon this point, it is probable that she will be seen in competition in the Olympic games under the colors of Norway.

The decision of the International Olympic Committee is not likely to have any effect upon the plans of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, or Mrs. Mallory, personally, in regard to competition for this country in the woman's international team match and the Eng-

MEMORIES BRING SWEETEST THRILL

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WHEN Gertrude Berkeley smiled across the footlights at the Arlington Square the other evening and added her own fine bit to the highly spirited premiere of the Berkeley Comedians in "Irene," she gazed upon a familiar scene and probably treated herself to a thrill of treasured memories. She was no stranger in a strange land, seeking a friendly face—she was treading familiar ground, enjoying a first-class, exhilarating reunion with her own well-behaved artistic past. For she had smiled across the same footlights before in what we love to call the good old days, when dramatic stock moved in high circles, from which actors dispensed their wares six nights a week, with an equal number of matinees. The stretch of time that now separates Miss Berkeley from her former activities with the Ames and Deland regime had not, she discovered, dulled her recollection of happy days at the old Castle Square, more recently rechristened the Arlington.

MISS BERKELEY FINDS NEW FRIENDS IN BOSTON ARE JUST LIKE THE OLD

GERTRUDE BERKELEY, playing character parts—and playing them well—when Charles Mackay and Lillian Kemble made your heart thump responsively to as effective love scenes as the stage has ever shown, had her own friends and admirers—following the custom of stock productions. And she got her share of flowers on important occasions—as they always do in stock. Which is mentioned merely as an incident leading up to the oft-quoted and unimpressive remark that history repeats itself. At the opening performance last Wednesday Miss Berkeley moved through the same old throbbing scenes; found herself again facing an audience of home folk, taking tribute in applause and freshly cut orchids, and in the best manner possible making graceful acknowledgment. It was no new sensation. "It sounds commonplace," Miss Berkeley was saying, "but you cannot have any idea of the thrill that clutched at my heart when I found myself once more reading lines from the stage that had been so closely associated with my professional career—a stage that has taught me much and which had been particularly free from regrets. It is really astonishing how clearly I remember small details in the old Castle Square stage and how I found myself hunting for them on the Arlington stage, like the loose board in the floor in front of my old dressing room and the private peg for the stage carpenter's coat, carefully and precisely driven into the wall near the electrician's switchboard. In the stress of a hard performance and a heavy set he liked to toss his coat onto his own private hook. And it's still there."

There's plenty to do in stock, declares Gertrude Berkeley.

ACTRESS ASSERTS STRONG BELIEF IN POPULARITY OF DOLLAR MUSICAL SHOWS

MANY sterling players have served their apprenticeship on that same stage and found glory and fame later in broader fields of the drama. Miss Berkeley is one of that grand alumni of artists, for following her term with Ames and Deland she joined the gifted Nazimova and for several seasons followed the pleasant fortunes of that interesting lady. "Let's forget the past for a minute," she suggested, "and step right out into the present, because that's the most important time with the Berkeley Comedians. Let me ask you a plain question, and please tell the truth. What do you think of musical comedy at one dollar?"

That was an easy one. "Why, it's wonderful," we answered.

"I'm glad you agree with me," she went on. "Now, what do you think of our 'Irene'? Spare me not—tell the straightest truth you know."

Here was an interviewer being interviewed, with no apparent hope for escape. "Truth compels the avowal," you confided, "that your own 'Irene' is a joy—a truly fine performance, especially that of your son, Busby. You should charge higher prices. It's all right to compliment a member of the family, but—"

THERE was no hesitation, naturally.

"Well, I'm the boy's mother and I suppose I ought to say that kind words about him don't hurt very much. Yes, I think he is pretty good—in fact, I always did have that notion. Still, it's sweet to hear friendly news from outside the family circle. And we will not ask higher prices. Our plan from the start has been to give the best there is in musical comedy at popular prices; we feel that there is a crying need for just such a venture as we are bringing to Boston. But Busby has worked hard; he has directed all the rehearsals besides playing an important part himself, and if there is to be any reward for a faithful service well done, he has earned it."

"Spoken like a true mother," you interrupted.

"Of course," she replied—and rushed to the stage to once more face a friendly audience and prove that all the talent in the family is not in possession of the son.

Looking Ahead

CAMERA MEN GET VOLCANO IN ACTION

Vesuvius in eruption, the gates of a reservoir burst open by the onrushing volume of burning lava, the inhabitants of the valley towns fleeing in terror from the twin horrors of fire and water.

How many times has this tragedy of nature been enacted in real life?

The screen never actually caught such scenes until last Spring, when Henry King and Lillian Gish set forth to Italy to film F. Marion Crawford's world-renowned novel, "The White Sister," which is beautified by the superlativeness of Lillian Gish.

The eruption of Vesuvius is but the thrilling climax of "The White Sister," a powerful love story based on an eternal theme. The picture enters upon the last week at the Majestic on Monday.

MACLEAN IN STIRRING FILM

Douglas MacLean has taken a leaf out of the book of the most celebrated American newspaper war correspondent in picturizing the screen version of "The Yankee Consul." The Spanish War was made memorable by the unparalleled and heroic feat of Karl Decker, the well known feature story writer, then stationed in Havana.

Karl Decker's spectacular deed in saving the Spanish senorita gave the English-speaking world the finest romantic thrill it had ever experienced since the days of chivalry and Ivanhoe. Decker's daring ignited the spark of patriotism in the American people. Later when the Battleship Maine was blown up in the Havana harbor the spark burst into flame. That's how the Spanish War started.

Douglas MacLean is now said to have duplicated Karl Decker's thrill in the film version of "The Yankee Counsul." This famous musical comedy of laughing memory became a bubbling Broadway success from a night twenty years ago on Washington's birthday when it had its New York premier. It showed that Henry Blossom, the gifted writer of the book and play of "Checkers," which had been read and enjoyed by millions could be just as clever a lyricist as he was a playwright.

GIRLS IN BIG REVUE

By JOHN MURRAY ANDERSON of the Greenwich Village Follies

To get varying effects with a chorus, the producer must not select girls of the same type, and it would be quite as foolish to select girls of the same temperament for the same background. Each one of the chorus must have individuality as well as a personality. For instance, a chorus that is trained until it is nothing more than a machine never appealed to me. I want, besides personality and temperament, originality. Therefore, I vary my selections as much as possible. I like strongly accentuated types, both in physical appearance and mentally.

In order to get variation in the chorus it is very important to obtain girls who come from different spheres in life. For instance, Jean La Marr in the present Greenwich Village Follies was private secretary to Attorney General Walmesley of Louisiana, and Helen Richardson is a well know society girl from fashionable Greenwich, Conn. Marie Saudeux was a buyer for a millinery department in a large store. Then there is Geneva Duker, Boston girl, who comes from a theatrical family. All of her sisters are well known on the stage.

"This will show you just how many different homes artist models from our chorus come. The chorus I choose has got to be varied just as a melody, and to be a melody it must be made up of different notes, or, to my mind, the ideal girl for a big revue chorus is one who has personality, temperament and originality.

Famous Beauty

PEGGY HOPKINS JOYCE

Girl of many romances and much spotlight will appear at Colonial with Earl Carroll's "Vanities" on Monday, January 28.

Prima Donna Who Stepped Right Out of Chorus

"It all happened this way," says Jean Tennyson, the stowaway prima donna now appearing at the Tremont in the title role of Adrienne.

"Miss Segal took it into her head to become Mrs. Robert Ames and leave the cast, so Louis F. Werba, the producer, had to find another Adrienne, and, like so many employers, he didn't look for home talent, but went outside to find somebody with a reputation. So the stowaway in the chorus was overlooked.

"The new prima donna lasted only a few days and Mr. Werba found himself minus an Adrienne. I knew the part and he had to risk it, so I was pitchforked into the lead and made good—in fact so good that I was made a real prima donna from chorus girl over night. So there you are."

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

SELWYN—Jane Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet." Presented by the Selwyns in association with Adolph Klauber. Miss Cowl's Juliet stirred New York playgoers and critics as no Shakespearian offering has done in many seasons. Rollo Peters will play Romeo. Frank Reicher is directing.

* * *

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Sir Harry Lauder in a program of songs, new and old. Among the new melodies promised are "Love Makes the World a Merry-Go-Round," "The Dixie Girls Are Good Enough for Me," which suggests the Americanization of Sir Harry, and "Bella the Belle o' Dunoon." There also are associate entertainers.

FENWAY—(Opening today.) "The Yankee Consul," giving Douglas MacLean his second starring medium. A picturization of a famous musical play of twenty years ago in which Raymond Hitchcock first reached real heights as a stage celebrity. A thrilling, gripping story of South American revolutions.

* * *

SOMERVILLE—"The County Fair," a dramatic classic of other days when Nell Burgess gave playgoers their first glimpse of genuine rural comedy. The Burgess role of Aunt Abby will be played by Frank Thomas. Others in the cast will be Ann MacDonald, Bernard Nedell, Lesta Corder and Phil Sheffield. Directed by Halbert Brown.

SIR HARRY LAUDER—BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

Marya Freund To Sing At Next Symphony

Marya reund, the noted European soprano, will make her Boston debut as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the next regular pair of concerts to be given on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, January 25 and 26. She will sing an aria of Monteverde and three songs of Mahler.

Pierre Monteux will perform on this occasion Stravinsky's much discussed score, "The Rites of Spring." It was Pierre Monteux who introduced this music in Paris, both in ballet and concert form, on occasions now famous.

The program will open with Beethoven's "Pastoral" Symphony No. 6.

Hal Oliver, who has handled the preliminary publicity for "Irene" at the Arlington Square, has returned to New York to take over the exploitation of a motion picture.

Sir Harry Lauder In New Songs At Opera House

Sir Harry Lauder and an excellent company of entertainers, provided by Manager William Morris will open a week's engagement at the Boston Opera House Monday night. As usual, when this famous comic comes to Boston, there has been a great deal of anticipatory interest in the engagement, and the customary big crowds and enthusiasm may be expected. More than ever this versatile little Scotchman has become a globe-trotter. Two years ago it was South Africa, last year it was the British Isles, the past summer it was Australia, and during the next two years his restless spirit and his unfailing melody will carry him completely around the world. Many changes may take place in two years and the admirers of Sir Harry and his peculiar and curiously entertaining form of entertainment will probably take full advantage of the opportunity to see him again and to make him feel that he has the goodwill of Boston theatre-goers during his long and varied tour of far countries.

The associate entertainers include Gintaro, oriental topsginner; Marian Wallace, vocalist; the Brothers Gaudsmith, London Hippodrome clowns; Olga Morselli, Parisian violinist, and Edna Maude, English solo dancer.

'VANITIES' TO HAVE BOSTON GIRLS

Local girls with stage ambitions will have an opportunity to join one of the outstanding musical shows of the season inasmuch as Earl Carroll, producer of "Vanities," is going to pick ten Boston girls to appear with the attraction during its engagement at the Colonial Theatre which starts on Monday, January 28th.

"Vanities" has just closed a year's run at the Earl Carroll Theatre in New York and the opportunity to join the attraction was first tried out during an engagement at Pittsburgh. Philadelphia followed with the result that two girls from these cities are now permanent members of the company. While the general scheme is to engage the ten girls for the Boston engagement only, Mr. Carroll selects one of the girls who is given a contract for the "Vanities of 1924" which will open in New York in June. The Boston girls selected will be paid a weekly salary for their appearance in the show and will become regular members of the big company.

The requirements are very simple. All that is necessary is to mail your photograph with your name and address to Earl Carroll, Colonial Theatre, Boston. Mr. Carroll will visit Boston and notify every girl who has sent her photograph when to report at the theatre for rehearsal. The ten most beautiful will then be selected for the engagement of "Vanities."

Steinert Concert To Have Zimbalist For Star

The second concert in the Steinert Series at Symphony Hall will occur Sunday, January 27. Efrem Zimbalist, famous Russian violinist, will be the artist; Mr. Emanuel Bay will assist at the piano. Mr. Zimbalist recently acquired the Stradivarius violin, known as the "Titian," at a cost close to $83,000, making a special trip to Europe to close the deal. The great violinist declares that the tone of the instrument amply justifies the reputation the violin has enjoyed abroad. He will use it at all of his recitals this season.

ZANGWILL COMING

The notable visit to America of Israel Zangwill, the dramatist, novelist and speaker, will include a visit to Boston and a lecture in Symphony Hall on Thursday evening, January 31. Zangwill did not come here primarily to lecture but to attend the opening of his latest play, "We Moderns," in Chicago.

HEIFETZ RECITAL

Jascha Heifetz, the great Russian violinist, is to visit Boston for his only recital this season next month. The recital will be given on Sunday afternoon, February 24th, in Symphony Hall.

Richard (Skeets) Gallagher Tells How to Be Funny

Though there are, here and there, some real comedians on the American stage, not a few of them but rely on mannerisms and trick make-up to draw laughs from their audiences. There is one, however, who uses as few artifices as possible, and who is as natural and yet as amusing as one might ask. He is Richard (Skeets) Gallagher, comedian with "Up She Goes."

"A comedian should not advertise the fact that he is funny," says Mr. Gallagher. "That's for him to prove. An audience, especially a vaudeville audience, can size up a comedian in short order. Audiences vary. It is astonishing how much more appreciative some are than others. Some them too much for his laughs. A audiences are cool. It doesn't take line is not funny if it's too long. In fact for that fact to reach us, either variably the laugh depends on a No matter how clever a comedian single word, and if it's buried in is, he cannot work without good the middle of a sentence it's quite ideas. But he must not lean on art to get laughs."

NOTED SINGER HERE WITH OPERA

Fernand Anseau, new tenor of the Chicago Opera Company, whose first Boston appearance will take place at the Boston Opera House Tuesday evening, Jan. 29, when he sings opposite Mary Garden in "Louise," is a native of Bousau, the mining region of Belgium. His father, whose sudden death was announced to the tenor shortly after Christmas as he was about to step on the stage to sing the role of Frinzivalle in "Monna Vanna," was a musician, and had an early hand in the boy's training.

Fernand was placed in the Brussels Conservatory of Music at the age of 18, under the tutelage of De-[illegible] has produced a long list of operatic and concert tenors. [illegible] and a half years of training, Anseau received two prizes for singing. He came prominently before the music public of his native land as a finished singer in 1913, and as a result of a successful debut, was engaged for the opera at Dijon, France, singing there in 1914-15. His histrionic training was in the skilled hands of Victor Caiso of the Monnaie at Brussels.

The young tenor (he is now only 21) resumed his interrupted operatic career at the close of the war, with a triumphant debut at the reopening of the Monnaie in "Pagliacci." This was followed by appearances in "Faust," Samson," Romeo and Juliette," "Herodiade" and "Alceste."

In the years 1920-21 Anseau sang at Covent Garden, London. The following year he made a memorable debut at the Opera Comique in Paris. This was followed by appearances Paris Grand Opera, where he triumphed in such operas as "Romeo," "Griselda," Herodiade," "Pagliacci," "Damnation of Faust," "Lohengrin" and "Samson."

DAVIES FILM FINDS FAVOR IN 'HUB

Marion Davies in the Cosmopolitan production, "Little Old New York," begins the second week at the Park Theatre tomorrow with the customary two Sunday performances. Boston has received the production with all the enthusiasm which has been accorded it in New York, London and other great cities where it has been seen.

In this delightful screen story, which was adapted from Rida Johnson Young's successful stage play, Miss Davies has a delightful role as the Irish emigrant girl who comes to this country to claim a fortune. The period is in the early days of the last century when New York was in its most picturesque times. It was a momentous stage in the city's history, when persons were living who later became famous for their great accomplishments. And one of the chief attributes of the picture is the faithful reproduction of old New York localities wherein the action takes place. These scenes are from the designs of the eminent Irving scenic artist, Josef Urban.

The work of Miss Davies is a revelation through the [illegible] in artistry she displays, and she makes of the Irish lassie in [illegible] quite a [illegible] and humorous figure. Comedy predominates and probably no more laughable scene has been shown than that of the prize fight. A scene of special thrills is that of the first voyage of Fulton's steamboat on its initial tryout up the Hudson. The cast merits emphatic approval because each player surely [illegible] for his or her ability to play the roles assumed. The daily showings are given at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.

MARY MARBLE GAVE CRAVEN GOOD JOB

When Frank Craven, leading player and author of "The First Year," at the Hollis was a struggling stock actor, he was given a job by Mary Marble, a popular actress starring in a musical piece called "Nancy Brown." Of course, it wasn't an act of charity, because Craven, even in those early days, was already considered a splendid character actor. He had played in stock in such cities as Norfolk, Richmond and Atlanta, and in these were some of the places that were included in Miss Marble's tour, it was considered a stroke of good business to have a player like Craven in the cast.

Today, Mary Marble is a member of Mr. Craven's company, playing the part of Hattie, the colored maid who waits on the table in the Tucker flat, although, as she confesses, she washes better.

"Fate plays queer tricks," said Miss Marble the other evening, "for there I was at the head of my own company, with Mr. Craven as one of my supporting cast. Now our positions are just reversed, and Frank has won a hard, uphill fight. He is entitled to all the credit, too, for how many of us, when engagements are scarce, can sit down and write our own vehicles as he did, first with "Too Many Cooks," and again with "The First Year?"

For twenty years Mary Marble costarred with Little Chip, later known as Sam Chip. They played in such musical hits as "A Milk White Flag," "Babes in Toyland," "Dream City" and "His Honor the Mayor." Later they toured in vaudeville together, appearing in "The Clock Shop," "In Old Edam" and "The Land of Dykes."

From the Play by RIDA JOHNSON YOUNG
Adapted by LUTHER REED
Directed by SIDNEY OLCOTT

Music by WILLIAM FREDERIC PETERS
Overture by VICTOR HERBERT
Special Orchestra Conducted by ALBERT M. KAMRICH

MAYOR CURLEY says: "It was my very great pleasure, in company with my family, to witness the premiere in Boston of 'Little Old New York.' The production possesses such great merit that its success is assured, and another leaf has been added to Mr. Hearst's many worthwhile contributions to American life."

LIEUT. GOV. FULLER says: "I want to tell you how much I enjoyed 'Little Old New York.' Everyone was thrilled and of course the audience loved 'Pat.' I felt as though I personally met Fulton, Schuyler, Vanderbilt, Astor and those other sturdy pioneers. The picture was a delight and an inspiration."

ATTY. GEN. BENTON says: "The picture is excellent from every standpoint. The launching and epoch-making trip of the 'Clermont' with the Palisades towering in the background—the many historical figures—the costuming—the detail of the settings—all marvelous. I am grateful for having seen it."

JOHN SHEPARD, Third, says: "I consider 'Little Old New York' not only a corking picture throughout, but of great historical interest as well. It should prove that a good, clean picture can draw capacity houses. Marion Davies gave a wonderful portrayal of 'Pat' O'Day."

"LITTLE OLD NEW YORK," on account of existing contracts, will be seen in Boston for only a short time. Many people in other cities have stood in line only to be disappointed at not being able to buy seats. Many in Boston last week were just as unfortunate. It is in regard for your interests, comfort and convenience that we strongly urge upon you to secure your seats in advance, as the advance sale now is the heaviest in the history of the Park Theatre!!

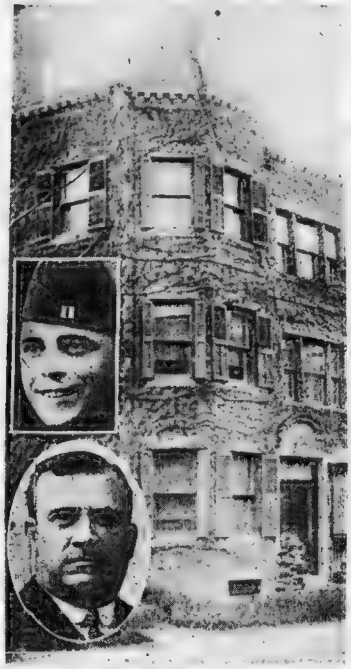
WIFE, IN RAGE, EVICTED CANDY KING

Rogers Heiress Wedded to 'Empty Title'

WHERE MRS. SHAW'S SAD LIFE ENDED



MRS. SHAW'S HOME, SHAW, ANGELL

Here is the mansion at No. 6 Keswick street, Back Bay, where Mrs. Charles Nason Shaw died surrounded by jewelry worth a fortune. Lower inset, Charles Nason Shaw, the husband whom she cut off in her will in favor of the man social companion hired for her by Shaw when the couple became estranged. Upper inset, former Captain Isaac Har[illegible] Angell, who recently married Lillian Forsaith, Shaw's candy counter girl, who became wealthy during the platonic friendship that was formed by her and Shaw after she came into his employ at fifteen years of age.

GIRLS ARE HELD ON CHECK FRAUD

Youthful Trio Arrested After Attempt to Pass Bogus Paper at Bank

A young woman, alleged to have taught girls to pass bogus checks, was arrested by Boston police inspectors with two of her alleged pupils.

The woman is Clara Ross, twenty-four years old, who says she has no home or occupation. The younger girls, who, the police believe are runaways from home, said they were Sarah Sheehan, sixteen years old, of No. 28 Sargent street, Gloucester, and Evelyn King, fifteen years old, of No. 123 Duncan street, Gloucester.

The chain of events that led to the arrest of the three began when the two younger girls entered the Haymarket branch of the Massachusetts Trust Company on Canal street and tried to cash a check for $25.

DETECTIVE ON TRAIL.

The clerk, his suspicions aroused, refused to cash the check and put a W. J. Burns detective on the trail of the girls.

The girls told Inspector Dorsey the Ross woman made their acquaintance in a restaurant on Causeway street. She bought them candy and invited them to her room. They claimed she gave them the check and instructed them to ask some man in the street to cash it and to pay him $10.

She promised, the girls said, to take them to New York and to buy them pretty clothing when the check was cashed.

They also charged Mrs. Ross with taking them to a questionable resort in the South End where they saw men and girls drinking and that she tried to induce them to stay there, but they refused.

Parents of the girls, hurried here from Gloucester today to take them in hand.

The check had been certified by the Fall River Trust Company. It was drawn upon Meyer Levine of the Mason Furniture Company of Fall River and made payable to the Empire Carpet Company of New York.

Police communicated with Levine and were told he did not know Miss Ross. The latter, however, protested that she got the check from Mr. Mason of the Mason urniture Company. The police are still probing the mystery.

BABY WITH TACK IN LUNG READY FOR OPERATION

8-Months-Old Child, Rushed From St. Louis, Arrives in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Jan. 19. — Cletus Moore, eight-months-old baby who was rushed to this city from St. Louis for an operation to remove a tack from his lung, arrived here early today. The baby lies in a crib at the University Hospital, where Dr. Chevalier Jackson made preparations to operate later in the day.

The infant was watched with the greatest care on the trip east by Mrs. Lela A. Parrish, assistant superintendent of nurses at the City Hospital, St. Louis.

"If I can only take him back well," Mrs. Parrish said wistfully, as she surrendered the child to the hospital authorities.

The little fellow, despite the tack in his lung, stood the long trip well.

Cletus is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Moore of St. Louis. He is one of seven children. Nearly four weeks ago he showed signs of illness. The father took him to several physicians and finally to the city hospital, where an X-ray photograph revealed the tack in the right lung. It was then decided to have him brought to this city, on funds provided by a church organization, to have Dr. Jackson try to extract the tack.

Dr. Jackson has performed many similar tasks on patients from different parts of the country. Cletus is one of the youngest on whom he will try to use the bronchoscope. It is a tube with a tiny electric bulb at the lower end. It is inserted into the lung. The doctor looks down through it, locates the object and then inserts tiny forceps, manipulated from the upper end of the tube, and removes the obstruction.

ALCOHOL IN FURNACE IMPERILS 6 FAMILIES

Somebody parked a half dozen cans of alcohol in the furnace of a six family house at No. 35 Crosby street, Lynn. Somebody else decided it was cold enough to have a little heat, and built a fire in the furnace.

Six families were chased to the street when the furnace became red-hot. Firemen investigated and called the Lynn police. Eighteen more gallons were found about the basement. None of the tenants were able to tell the police where it came from.

ROMANCE IN BOX OF CANDY

But End Was Dismal for Woman Who Tried to Punish Her Mate

What lies behind a box of candy? Dreams, heart aches, sadness and maybe tragedy.

Years ago Lew Fields, famous comedian, starred in a little musical comedy called "The Girl Behind the Counter."

It so happened that Vernon Castle was a humble chorus man in this show. Which is incidental. The point is the show revolved about a candy shop. The girl behind the counter had a romance which led to where all show romances lead, happiness, wedding, husband, then the—curtain.

Now read of a genuine Boston candy counter girl. Also of the candy itself and the drab little kitchen where it was first [illegible]. The candy is the famous "[illegible] and Shaws."

It was first made by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nason Shaw. It was [illegible] years ago in their [illegible] West street. [illegible] Lillian Forsaith then living at No. 24 Frost avenue, Dorchester.

Lillian, petite and dainty, did not sell it as the Shaws made it. They had leaped to fame then were prosperous. For years they had bent over copper kettles mixing confections. Shaw was a genius at concocting. When fame came they had expensive candy chefs produce their recipes.

Lillian sold it though, so well that she rose to the position of manager. This was years ago.

GIRL NOW WEALTHY

Where is she today? Where is Shaw? Where is Mrs. Shaw?

Lillian is now Mrs. Isaac H. Angell, worth a fortune, which she possessed when she was recently married.

She owns a magnificent estate in Arlington which overlooks Mystic Lakes and Middlesex Fells, and a Summer place in Maine. Shaw, failing in health, lives with her.

For years previous to her marriage he lived with her family. They were friends, with mutual friends in Boston.

Mrs. Shaw is dead. She died in December last, leaving behind one of the strangest wills ever recorded, also the strangest state of affairs. She died in the mansion she had occupied at No. 6 Keswick street, Back Bay.

Immediately after she breathed her last, a police guard surrounded the house. Reporters were barred, visitors also. Why? Because in the house scattered about were jewels valued at a king's ransom, comprising besides pendants, bracelets, ear drops, pearls and the like, twenty-eight diamond rings.

CUT OFF HUSBAND

All these, and they were the gifts of her husband, she left along with real estate valued at $100,000 to her husband?

No. She cut him off entirely. She left this great fortune to Albert W. Myer, with a proviso which ranks the will as weird, reading, "If he takes the proper care of my pet spaniel."

Who is Albert Myer that he should so be remembered?

Once he was an actor. But years ago he was hired by Shaw to take his place as a companion to Mrs. Shaw and live in that lady's beautiful Beacon Hill home. Salary was $25 per week and found. Why did Shaw want a companion for his wife?

Because twenty years ago Shaw and his wife after succeeding in their battle to gain fame and success in business experienced marital difficulties and separated.

Lillian Forsaith became "the girl behind the counter" in Shaw's West street candy shop in 1902.

LILLIAN ONLY 15

She was slender and pretty and only 15 years old.

Two years later the Shaws separated.

"A ray of sunshine has come into my

WAVE FLASK IN ATTACK 'ON DRYS'

Congressman, 88, Flourishes Empty Container and Flays Anti-Wets

Washington, Jan. 19.—Flourishing an empty flask and assailing the activities of the Anti Saloon League and Representative Upshaw of Georgia, Representative Sherwood of Ohio, eighty-eight year-old veteran of the House of Representatives, told his colleagues today that "up to 1924, it is generally conceded that prohibition enforcement officers have failed to enforce the law" and also charged that the use of [illegible] had increased enormously.

[illegible]

MORAL MENACE.

He cited figures to show that there was a mounting consumption of British liquors in the United States, [illegible] the 1923 exports from that country at 25,000,000 gallons, compared with 22,000,000 gallons the year previous.

"Since the passage by Congress of the Volstead act," said Mr. Sherwood, "there has been a large increase in booze drinking among young men and young girls. Young men who never indulged in liquor before are now carrying flasks in hip-pockets, and young girls are induced to drink the vile stuff in dance halls and automobiles parked along lonesome roads. It is a moral menace now and it is growing worse."

"Crime has increased 40 per cent., divorces in some fifty cities have increased 35 per cent. and murders have increased 40 per cent. And worse than all the calamities that have happened since the Volstead act is the fearful record of the dope fiends, or narcotic addicts, now numbering nearly a million victims."

GALL AND AUDACITY.

Charging Representative Upshaw with "skyrocket oratory," Mr. Sherwood said his Georgia colleague had "failed to point out a single benefit to either an individual or the State" because of prohibition. "This bold attitude required the gall of a curmudgeon, and the audacity of a Chinese bandit," he declared, characterizing Mr. Upshaw as "the reincarnation of the old puritans of the seventeenth century who hung Quakers in Connecticut and burned witches in Massachusetts."

DEMANDS ARRESTS IN BABIES' DEATHS

Worcester, Jan. 19.—Assistant District Attorney Charles B. Rugg, at the inquest held today in the death of the two babies crushed to death by the elevator in the Worcester City Hospital last Sunday, asked Judge Samuel Utley to issue complaints against the city of Worcester; Dr. Charles A. Drew, superintendent of the City Hospital, George Halcott, superintendent of the Department of Public Buildings and Harry F. Fearless, elevator inspector for the city of Worcester. Miss Ruth Beck, the nurse in charge of the elevator at the time, became hysterical in court today and was taken to the hospital.

The family, consisting of George Lackey, his wife and three [illegible] children, still continue to battle snow and rain storms in their frail abode, in Waltham with only the additional protection of a dilapidated shack built about it.

Lackey is still out of a job and he and the members of the little family still continue to live from hand to mouth, depending largely upon gifts from kindly neighbors for existence.

The Lackeys weathered the Christmas holiday season by the kindness of persons who heard of their plight through the stories published in the Boston American. They were also the recipients of a basket from the American Christmas Basket Fund.

Lackey is a shell-shocked veteran of the World War. He is now trying to get government compensation. But what he wants above all else is the opportunity to work and earn an honorable living for his little family.

3 EXPLOSIONS IN $150,000 FIRE IN FALL RIVER

Several Firemen in Peril as Flames Sweep Through Hat Factory

Fall River, Jan. 19.—A two-alarm fire, in which there were three explosions that were heard more than a mile distant, did $150,000 damage today in the straw hat department of the five-story brick building of the Marshall Hat Company on Chace street.

The blaze started in the drying room. Several firemen were overcome by dense smoke and many of them had narrow escapes from glass shattered by the explosions and heat.

The fire started about an hour after the 800 employes had left the plant for the week end. It is estimated 200 of the employes will be thrown out of work.

The factory is being run by Kaufman Bros. of New York.

They said the girl had filed a statement at Detroit with Theodore Henderson, bishop of the Michigan area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which supports Albion College, in which she charged President Laird [illegible] and attempted to kiss her.

FEAR DEMONSTRATION IF DE VALERA IS SEEN

Dublin, Jan. 19.—The commission appointed by the American courts to take evidence regarding Dail funds impounded in the United States assembled today at the American consulate to take the evidence of Eamon De Valera and Austin Stack, imprisoned Republican leaders. On being informed that the Free State government considered it inadvisable to expose De Valera and Stack to the risk of a demonstration in the Dublin streets the commission decided to sit next Monday in the Arbour Hill barracks, where the prisoners are detained.

John F. Finerty, national president of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, and counsel for De Valera, declared he could not consent to participate in any hearing at a place of confinement as it would be an affront.

CANDY COUNTER GIRL FOR SHAW IS RICH NOW

Recently Married and Possesses Magnificent Estate in Arlington

life," said the great candy man at the time. "I will not give it up." This marked the beginning of the platonic friendship of Shaw and "the girl behind the counter."

He went to live with Lillian Forsaith's family. He had known her father [illegible] the year 18[illegible].

In 19[illegible] the "girl behind the counter" bought a house and land in [illegible] Winchester and moved her family [illegible] Shaw accompanying them. Two years later the "girl behind the counter" bought more property [illegible] afford. Three years after that she purchased the beautiful estate she [illegible] in Arlington. Shaw bought land adjoining it.

[illegible] live the mother and father of the "girl behind the counter," also two married sisters.

The Maine home occupied by Lillian Forsaith Angell is located on the Saco-Portland motor highway. It is a [illegible] estate called "Angel [illegible]." On it stand a beautiful residence, tea [illegible] gift shop, great garage and a private fire apparatus.

There Shaw was seen by an American reporter concerning his intentions to break his wife's strange will. A very sick man he staggered to the door to say:

BAN ON SEEING HER

"I will not say anything derogatory against my dead wife. I never [illegible]. I always remember she was Mrs. Shaw. We separated years ago but remained friends."

[illegible] what caused the woman he had such high regard for to cut him off? It is even said Shaw following the separation for years made her gifts of the most expensive jewels he could buy.

This is the reason. Following the marriage of the "girl behind the counter" two years ago to Angell, who lived at No. 15 Forest street, Roxbury, Shaw went to live at a hotel. His wife offered him a home in a residence she had purchased at No. 132 Chestnut street. She had installed some veteran employes in it.

"But," she is alleged to have said, "you are not to be visited there by certain persons."

Among the persons named was the "girl behind the counter."

Seven months before Mrs. Shaw died she dropped in to see her husband in the Chestnut street residence.

"Who was there?"

Somebody who caused Mrs. Shaw to go into such a violent rage she ordered Shaw evicted and the house sold.

Two weeks before she died she made a will with hands that trembled. In that will she cut off the man who had once stood by her side in a little candy kitchen mixed toothsome sweets, and left all to a companion who had been hired by Shaw to—

"Accompany my wife to see theater and operas and in fact be a paid social companion."

Also, other servants.

A whole drama of life may be hind a box of candy.

He was placed on probation and ordered to serve as a junior policeman to patrol the railroad during his spare moments and prevent other boys from committing nuisances.

Newark, N. Two men locked in the car released themselves and with blood-stained faces stood guard with revolvers over the cash.

Every available detective and reserve man was rushed to the scene to protect the cash bags, a number of which burst open, scattering gold silver and notes inside the car.

SHENANDOAH TO ANNEX LANDS ON POLAR TRIP

Denby Outlines Purpose of the Arctic Flight; Must Act This Coming Summer

Washington, Jan. 19.—The prime purpose of the Shenandoah's proposed Polar flight, Secretary Denby told the House Naval Committee today, is exploration in the Arctic regions with a view to annexing land in that area to the United States.

"The mere fact that there is an unexplored area of 1,000,000 square miles adjacent to the United States," said Mr. Denby, "constitutes a constant challenge to the United States. We can't permit that vast territory to fall into the hands of another power. If we don't make this flight this Summer, the entire Arctic region will be photographed and mapped by another power within a year.

"We are not trying to discover the North Pole. We want to explore and the Shenandoah is admirably fitted for that task."

NEW LINK BETWEEN BOSTON AND CAMBRIDGE

PROPOSED STRUCTURE AT COTTAGE FARM

DOUBLE BRIDGE OVER CHARLES PLANNED

Structure to Accommodate Trains and Vehicles on Cottage Farm Site

A double bridge, combining railroad and highway traffic to be constructed on the site of the present Cottage Farm bridge, is the recommendation presented to the Legislature by the Division of Metropolitan Planning.

This is the result of two years' planning by the committee headed by Chairman Henry I. Harriman on the present bridge, which the Legislature has ordered to be reconstructed.

The double bridge, the division points out in its report, should be made as beautiful as possible and at the same time provide for the developments which are bound to come in the future.

NO LOCATION CHANGE.

No change of location is involved in the proposal. This cuts short a question which has been the cause of much argument. The bridge will have its Boston terminus at Essex street and the Cambridge terminus at Brookline street. The proposal of the division is that the plans be changed to provide for a combination highway and railroad bridge and that provision be made for an underpass under both the highway and the railroad for an extension of Bay State road as a parkway along the southern shore of the Charles River basin.

In the recommendation the division said:

"We recommend that the bridge be reconstructed at the present site. It shall be a combined railroad and highway bridge, the tracks of the railroad crossing on a lower level.

PARKWAYS PROVIDED FOR.

"If a new structure is built and the old Boston & Albany Railroad bridge left standing it will destroy the beauty of the new bridge and the appearance of the Charles River Basin. The engineers of this division in conjunction with those of the Metropolitan District Commission, have worked out a plan which provides for the railroad tracks at a sufficient elevation above the water to do away with the necessity of a drawbridge. It also provides for underpasses of the future parkways of either side of the river.

"The added cost of the consolidated bridge will be about $225,000 and as the railroad will thus secure a permanent crossing of the river on the new bridge, it will save the expense of maintaining the old pile structure and the drawbridge, we believe it fair that the railroad should pay to the State a reasonable rental for the benefits gained."

SAYS CUBA WITHOUT DRY LAW, IS SOBER

New York, Jan. 19.—Cuba, without prohibition laws, is virtually free from drunkenness, Felipe Taboada, consul-general for Cuba in New York, said after a visit to night court here as a guest of Magistrate Charles Oberwager.

Senor Taboada heard the disposition of a dozen or more cases of intoxication.

"In Cuba," he said, "we have no dry laws, and you would not see so many intoxication cases as were in court tonight. The Cubans can get all they want to drink, but seldom drink to excess."

GERMAN EX-OFFICERS ARE NOW MONKS

Berlin, Jan. 19.—Two men who were active officers in the German army during the war, one of them a prince, have become Franciscan monks, having taken the vow at the Stands Church, Munich. The prince is Alban Lowenstein Wertheim Freudenberg, formerly a captain in the Hannover Uhlans, the most famous and aristocratic cavalry regiment of the German army.

The other ex-officer is former General von Reichlin Meldegg who, until he began studying for the priesthood, was military commander of Ingolstadt, Bavaria.

Athens—A plebiscite to determine the fate of the Glucksbourg Hellenic dynasty will be held in April, Premier Venizelos officially announced.

HOME FIXTURES A HARDWARE SPECIALTY.

J. B. Hunter Co. Has on Display 3,000 Useful Articles for Housewife

One of the most amazing features of modern American business, as seen in the retail trade, is the breaking down of old-time customs as to the type of goods sold. Thus the modern cigar store sells, in addition to tobacco, a variety of products ranging from candy to safety razors. The drug store has become a veritable department store and restaurant combined.

Less familiar to the general public, but equally as radical have been the changes which have taken place in the hardware trade. The modern hardware store carries a variety of articles such as the old-time hardware merchant would never dream of stocking. Particularly is this true in the East.

HOME MAKERS' SUPPLIES.

Many Western hardware stores, in the agricultural and mining sections still bear some resemblance to the old-time store. But in the East hardware now means a variety of goods so great that "Home Makers' Supplies" would seem to be a necessary addition to the name.

The big hardware store of J. B. Hunter & Co. on Summer street, is a splendid example of the great change which has come over the hardware trade. Though one of the largest stores in Boston devoted to mechanic's tools and similar lines, the larger part of the store is given over to the display of those things which result in added beauty, convenience, or utility in the home.

Fixtures for the bathroom, cutlery for both the table and the kitchen, beautiful lamps, fire-place fittings, cameras and picture frames, and a hundred similar things greet the eye.

PANEL DISPALY.

One of the most interesting store features is a panelled section about 2,000 different items, many of which would be found in more homes if all householders knew of their existence. There are all sorts of pulls and handles for drawers and doors. There are chain door guards ranging from the simple style to elaborate ones which incorporate a burglar alarm in their construction.

This huge display is a never failing source of interest, particularly to women. Scarcely a day but some woman, who came into the store to buy some of the better known hardware specialties, stops at the display and recognizes something which she has "always wanted and never knew was made."

HONEST ADVICE FOR OWNERS OF TRUCKS

Autospring Service Corp. Motto Is Economy and Square Dealing

The American Autospring Service Corporation, First and Binney streets, Cambridge, attribute a large measure of their huge success to honest advice to patrons.

[illegible]

UNWISE COURSE.

The unwise course too often taken is to repair old springs that have had their day by inserting a few leaves of new steel, leaving in old crooked plates that are worn out. The result is the strain is all taken [illegible] spring with each leaf of the same physical strength and resiliency.

The American Autospring Service [illegible] pair work for large fleet owners but before replacing the old leaves each of these is heated and carefully examined for flaws, crystalization, etc. If any are found the exposed these leaves are junked or returned, no steel being left [illegible] what can be warranted to give [illegible]

REPAIR SERVICE.

In addition to maintaining a complete stock of springs for all trucks and motors cars this company operates a service station and manufacturing unit. This inclues special [illegible] for the cars and trucks, scientific heat treatment, ingenious forging [illegible] together with [illegible] trucks for the purpose of picking up and delivering repair work and new springs.

With these facilities and the co-operation of the American factory which manufactures equipment for every well known truck and motor [illegible] manufacturers this company [illegible] a repair and replacement [illegible] equal in every respect to a [illegible] factory service using the best spring steel obtainable, employing men who grew up in the industry and pricing their product and service at a compelling figure. Their future [illegible] depend on their power [illegible]

AWNING MAKERS COMBAT COST RISE

At the recent meeting of the Boston Awning Manufacturers' Association the problems of rising costs and increasing overhead were discussed and tentative plans made to stabilize the business for the approaching season.

Increases in the price of raw cotton have resulted in advance of several cents in the wholesale price of awning canvas. With prospects for business good it was considered desirable for members to discuss the situation so as to prevent any possibility of creating an artificial shortage and thus "sky-rocketing" prices when the season opens.

Robert Miller, Jr., of the Miller Awning Company, is the oldest member of the association and one of the most prominent and successful decorators in the city.

Among the recent big jobs handled by the Miller organization was that of the New Year's decorations at Young's Hotel, which evoked much favorable comment. Other large contracts have been awarded in Cambridge and Worcester among them being that for the big Worcester K. of C. ball in February.

General Electric at New High in Market of Uncertain Price Movements

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The news of W. C. Durant was much on the tongue of automobile men who gathered in New York for the automobile show a year ago. At this month's show his name was scarcely mentioned. Not a few automobile executives were worried last year over what Durant might do to their own business through Napoleonic competition he was heralding. Durant was then racing along on high. But, although 1923 was the biggest and last year the automobile industry ever had, the Durant boom failed to materialize.

Durant Motors shares early last year sold as high as $84. Since then they dropped to $21. Today they are not valued in the market at half of what [illegible] last year.

The Durant Bank, which was to revolutionize banking, has failed [illegible] its deposits [illegible] only a trifling figure compared with other New York banks.

[illegible] holders and others [illegible] If the Durant [illegible] ago [illegible] ing for [illegible] tions [illegible] can now buy at half price should they feel [illegible]

One man much discussed at this year's [illegible] was John N. Willys. [illegible] competitor declare that they take off their hats to him. His comeback has won the admiration of the industry. Even some of the interested bankers admit that Willys has astonished them by his achievements during the last twelve months.

Willys has gone through an experience similar to that undergone at one stage by Charles M. Schwab. Both obtained phenomenal financial success at a dangerously early age. Both, then, slackened their business pace and took life easy. Then things didn't go exactly to their liking and they jumped in, took off their coats, rolled up their sleeves and went at it hammer-and-tongs with fruitful results.

This I narrated partly for the benefit of others.

Talking of Schwab, I ran into Eugene G. Grace, of Bethlehem Steel, the other evening, for the first time in months. When I asked where he had been keeping himself he confessed he had had to let up for two months and pay more attention to his health than to his business.

"I hate to tell you this," he remarked smiling, "because I remember [illegible] I was [illegible] for it."

It [illegible] for some of [illegible] time [illegible] three divisions of a [illegible] business [illegible]

Of the twenty-five largest financial institutions in the United States, measured by deposits, New York has sixteen; Chicago has three, including the fifth place in the list; Los Angeles has two; [illegible] has Cleveland, [illegible] San Francisco and Boston each has one.

The National City Bank of New York easily heads the list, while the Guaranty Trust has a big lead over any other trust company. Since 1918, the National Bank of Commerce, New York, has gained 8 per cent. in deposits while the Chase Bank has gained 17 per cent., having made notable headway since Albert H. Wiggin resumed the presidency and got on the job night and day.

During the last five years the greatest [illegible] institutions [illegible] been made by the Bank of Italy, with an increase [illegible] per cent. The [illegible] Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles has gained more than 150 per cent., and the [illegible] Trust Company almost [illegible]. In New York the Corn Exchange has gained more [illegible] per cent., the Irving Bank [illegible] per cent. and the Chatham & Phenix and the Bank of America each close to 60 per cent. The Equitable Trust in New York has been going [illegible] now America's seventh largest bank, with deposits of more than $325,000,000.

The banks, including saving banks, are becoming both enterprising and humane institutions. The savings banks in New York and certain other [illegible] revolutionized their activities and are now [illegible] progressive [illegible] land. Several banks in rural communities now encourage crop raising, cattle, sheep and pig raising, etc., by offering annual prizes.

REPLIES TO INVESTORS

Get Expert Advice Before Trading in Stocks or Bonds

Before buying or selling stocks or bonds you ought to get expert advice. You also need reliable information from time to time, as market conditions change, regarding your list of holdings.

Don't buy or sell blindly. Get unprejudiced counsel to help you determine what course to take.

Such advice is yours for the asking. Address inquiries in confidence to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor of the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass., enclosing stamp for reply. Please write in ink on one side of the paper only.

JONES & BAKER

To Y. E. A.—I have several times printed the status of the Jones & Baker vs. creditors case, and cannot print it again, but am glad to send it to you and to any others who wish to be informed.

STOCK IN COMPANY

To A. C.—We want to say in the way of friendly criticism and advice that your "job" isn't worth having if there is any influence to be gained from owning stock in the company that you work for. We should certainly not want to see you put so much as a nickel of your $1,500 into this stock, if by doing so you would have any notion that you would serve and perpetuate your position. No company that is worth a tinker's [illegible] will [illegible] employe to invest in [illegible] stock or bonds.

Put that down as a working axiom. And if you did own stock in this company you would be just as liable to be laid off in periods of depression if you owned the stock as if you didn't own any. It is mighty fortunate that you have so much as $1,500 saved up. It is a sort of a life preserver under the circumstances that you are now in.

And $1,500 is a whole lot of money. It can tide you over a lot of rough places. It is a good thing to have even though you may be forced to expend some of your savings while waiting for your shop to take you on again. These "layoffs" are mighty unfortunate things. It is too bad that they have to occur. We should advise you to keep your money in the savings bank for the time being.

TELEPHONE

To H. P.—We believe American Telephone & Telegraph is a good investment for almost any man to put money into, even at the present relatively high price. It still offers a yield of 7 per cent. and still offers also a very good possibility of a further appreciation in market value. In past years it has sold a good deal higher than its present level—in years when it was only paying 8 per cent. against the present 9 per cent. rate.

We believe the bank you refer to is going to make a permanent success of itself. We think the bonds it offers in small pieces are excellent investments for a man who is willing to put his money into something that he cannot perhaps sell again very quickly. Between the two, we should prefer American Telephone. It is a pleasure to have served you in this matter.

PILGRIM OIL

To L. W.—There is a very doubtful market for Pilgrim Oil. The stock is freely offered by cut-rate brokers around 90 cents a share, but they make no bids. We doubt that you could sell it. It has no trace of investment value. We have told you some discouraging truths, but it is the only thing we could tell you, though we regret that it has been necessary for us to give you such disquieting advice.

TRACING SECURITIES

To W. M.—The three stocks referred to in the first part of your letter appear to be entirely without any market value or any intrinsic value. We doubt that it would be possible for you to find a buyer. We have no information on Florence Oil Stove Company.

Probably when you read the foregoing lines you will think that the advices in the first instance are unnecessarily harsh and the advices in the second instance are incomplete. We never mean to be harsh, but there are lots of times when we find it necessary to give discouraging information, and also in many cases it is impossible for us to trace unstandardized securities. We wish we might have been of constructive service to you, but that seems to be out of the question.

LEAVE OILS ALONE

To S. M.—We cannot attempt to advise you to buy Marland Oil and Ventura Oil. Were we to do so we would be becoming a party to your special speculative venture. The responsibility of deciding this thing rests entirely upon your own decision and judgment. Personally however, the writer would not go into these ventures now. We would leave all the oils alone until the situation in the oil fields was very much clearer than it is now.

CALIFORNIA EDISON

To L. M.—We believe California Edison common merits favorable consideration from any man who desires to put money into a semi-speculative investment offering a high yield. North American common, slightly higher class, is also approved on the same ground. Hudson & Manhattan adjustment 5s are approved on the same ground, too. All three of these securities are quickly marketable at any time.

The foregoing statements represent an expression of our belief. It does not necessarily follow, however, that any of these securities are exactly suitable for your own investment requirements. That we do not know. But we would know more how to advise you if you would tell us how much money you have available for investment and whether you are in any sense of the word dependent upon the income from your investments for your livelihood.

SELL YOUR STOCK

To J. L. M.—McKinley-Darragh Savage Mines of Cobalt, Ltd., has not rendered a report for 1923. In 1921 the property was not in operation. In 1922 it recovered 907,000 ounces of silver and shipped 344,000 ounces of silver, at a total cost of 64.68 cents. It earned 64.39 cents. Up to October 1, 1920, when dividends were suspended, the total amount paid was equivalent to 265 per cent. From January 1, 1921, to May 15, 1922, the property was closed down. It is utterly impossible for us to foretell the future of this company with any degree of accuracy. The writer was a holder of this stock himself and sold it after receiving goodly dividends. We think we are within the lines of conservatism and probably good judgment if we should advise you to dispose of your shares at market.

BALTIMORE & OHIO

To G. M. O.—We believe Baltimore & Ohio common stock is an excellent purchase around present level. Dividends in 1923 were earned about twice over. We think you need have no hesitancy in buying ten shares of it provided you hold it as a permanent investment, not as a speculation.

REYNOLDS B.

To J. J. W.—Three shares of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco "B" stock would cost you approximately $222. Based on current dividend rate of $3 a share, you would receive $9 a year in dividends, equal to about 4 per cent. on the invested amount. Three shares of the preferred stock would cost about $348. This pays 7 per cent. on par and would yield 6 per cent. on the invested amount. The preferred stock is safer and the issue we should advise you to buy.

FACTS NEEDED

To S. M.—We desire really to be of constructive service to you and suggest that you send a second letter giving us the amount you have available for investment, your age, the amount of your income and whether or not you now own any stocks or bonds. With this information you will place us in position to offer our friendly counsel.

HANDICAPPED

To J. M.—We do not in any way blame you for disposing of stocks in order to put the proceeds of the sale into more stable bonds, thus fortifying the safety of your principal, though we must confess we are somewhat handicapped in not having a list of the stocks that you now have in your possession. We have gone critically over the list of bonds referred to in your communication and want very definitely to say every one of these issues is, in our opinion, a desirable issue. As a matter of fact, we do not believe that it would be possible to select a better list of bonds yielding as much. These issues have a good degree of marketability and excellent standing as investment securities of meritorious worth.

POWDERED COAL

To K. A. K.—Powdered Coal Engineering & Equipment Company has an office at No. 2401 Washington boulevard, Chicago. The outstanding capitalization consists of $2,300,000 common stock of $10 par value. New York and Boston brokers offer the stock for sale at prices ranging from 50 cents a share to $1 a share, but do not make any bid price for it.

GOOD MOTORS

To N. L. P.—You need have no hesitancy, we believe, in gratifying your desire to own Packard Motor common, Hudson and Studebaker. If you put any of your money into them it should be on the basis of a permanent investment. Hudson Motors is selling at a price that is not equal to its asset value and earning capacity. Around $28 a share it yields 10⅝ per cent. from the $3 dividend. Last year the dividend was abundantly earned. Packard Motor common has a par value of $10 a share. At present price level it yields 9.68 per cent. from the 30 cents a share quarterly dividend. Studebaker pays 10 per cent. and yields about 9 per cent. on current level. We approve of your selections.

ONE IN 15,000

To G. H. S.—We regret the necessity that forces us to say that our lists contain no information whatsoever on Stony Pass Mining Company. Stock bought way back in 1903 is probably of no value now. It has been estimated only one mining promotion in 15,000 makes good. This is not a gambler's chance.

THE PULLMAN COMPANY
DIVIDEND NO. 128

A quarterly dividend (No. 128) of two dollars per share will be paid February 15th, 1924, to stockholders of record at the close of business, January 31st, 1924.

STELLA DALLAS By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

What Is the Effect Upon the Two, and Especially Upon Their Strange and Beautiful Child Laurel?

Both Stephen and Helen labored with Laurel

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. They visit a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison. The story now goes back to the marriage of Stephen and Stella at Milhampton. Stella starts a flirtation with Alfred Munn. The leading women of the town begin to drop her. Stephen, deciding he can never go back to her, starts a divorce suit. The story then goes back to Mrs. Morrison's marriage to her aged millionaire suitor. The latter dies and Stephen confesses his love to the widow. Stella and Laurel get in with a society set at a Summer hotel and Laurel goes canoeing with Richard Grosvenor.

By OLIVE HIGGINS PROUTY

Author of "Bobbie, General Manager," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Star in the Window," Etc.

HELEN and Stephen were alone with Laurel in Helen's lovely ivory-tinted room, seated, all three, before the fire, on the long Sheraton sofa, with Laurel in the middle.

Helen slipped an arm through Laurel's and smiling across at Stephen, said, "Shall I tell Laurel a story now?"

The story that Helen told was the story of her own life. She told it exquisitely. "And then—and then—and then—" step by step from the first ... when only a little older than Laurel, down through all the years when their paths diverged met, diverged again. It was a simple, straightforward statement of facts, with no excuses, no explanations. It sounded to Stephen like some beautiful epic poem. He had to close his eyes frequently ... out tears. When she reached the end, "And so here we are, Laurel, Stephen and I, together at last."

Laurel whispered softly, "Married?"

"Yes."

"I wondered when you would be ... was Laurel's unsurprised reply.

"How long have you wondered that, Laurel?" ... Stephen inquired.

... You aren't Mrs. ...

"Oh, I wondered ... Your ... Mrs. Morrison ... couldn't possibly ... anything else."

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Which is correct—"The coat is laying on the grass?" or "The coat is lying on the grass?"

M. S.

"THE coat is lying on the grass" is correct. The verb "to lie" (lie, lying, lay, lain) is an intransitive verb, that is, it does not take an object. The verb "to lay" (lay, laying, laid, laid) is transitive, that is, it does take an object. Therefore you say "The coat is lying on the grass," but you would say, "I laid the coat on the grass," because "coat" is the object of "laid."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: ...

I am to be married in the living room of my home at 6 o'clock in the evening. I am to wear conventional veil with white satin dress and train.

(1) Would white kid slippers be proper for me to wear?

(2) Should bridal attendants wear hats? Gloves?

(3) What is the correct attire for page and ringbearer? Would black satin pants, long-sleeved jackets to match, white silk blouse, black pumps and stockings be proper?

(4) The bridegroom and best man are to wear Tuxedos. What kind of shirt, collar and tie should they wear?

(5) Should they wear gloves?

E. H. D.

WHITE satin slippers are the best form. Satin best carries the "unity" of the costume, and looks richer than kid.

(2) This is a matter of personal choice. At a 6 o'clock home wedding I advise that you have your attendants wear bandeaux instead of hats and long white kid gloves.

(3) This costume is in excellent taste. The suit is sometimes in black velvet also, and sometimes in white satin. Also the stockings can be white with the black pumps.

(4) The shirt worn with a Tuxedo should be the same kind as that worn with full dress: a stiffly-laundered, white, linen shirt. The collar should be a wing collar. The tie worn with a Tuxedo should be a plain black silk one.

(5) No.

Mrs. Oswald Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Girardville, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my last two babies came. It keeps me in perfect health and I am on my feet getting meals and doing all my housework until an hour before the baby is born. A friend told me to take it and I have used ten bottles since I heard about it. I recommend the Vegetable Compound whenever I can. Just yesterday a friend was telling me how miserable she felt, and I said, 'If you start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's you will feel fine.' Now she is taking it."—Mrs. P. J. HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Large cakes require a moderate oven, fairly hot at first, and gradually cooling.

Do not put pepper into anything which has to be fried, as its presence causes the rascles or fritters to brush.

Do not add the flour to the boiling milk when making a sauce, but blend it first with cold milk, otherwise the sauce will never attain the requisite smoothness.

• • •

If a lump of sugar is placed in a plated teapot after the pot has been dried inside with a cloth, the sugar will soak up any remaining moisture, and prevent the pot from becoming musty.

• • •

If parsley is washed with warm water instead of cold it will retain its flavor and be much easier to chop.

• • •

Sour milk makes a good cottage cheese or good biscuits.

To skim sauces draw the saucepan to the side of the fire, pour in a teaspoonful of cold water, and the grease will rise so that it can be easily taken off.

Linen and cotton sheets should be put in a tub of warm water to which a little borax has been added and allowed to soak all night ready for washing day.

• • •

Burned cakes can be made presentable for the table by removing the burnt part with a nutmeg grater. This is much quicker and better than using a knife.

Freshly killed meat requires longer cooking than meat which has been well hung.

To clean black satin slippers, sponge them with vinegar, rubbed with a soft cloth or sponge.

If a Swiss roll be turned on to a damp cloth when cooked it does not stiffen so quickly and rolls more easily without breaking.

• • •

A few drops of lemon juice added to the dough when making pastry renders it more digestible.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

DR. EMIL COUE, the man who made knots famous, is back in this country. He's coming back to find out if everybody is getting better and better.

HE'S the only surgeon in the world who operates with string instead of knives.

CAN you imagine having your tonsils taken out with a piece of twine?

MR. COUE has been in the habit of making us better and better by using tweaky knots. This time he's going to use thirty, so that ought to make us perfect.

THIS will certainly become a healthy nation if the doctor doesn't run out of cord.

HE'S one man who can truthfully say that he started his business career on a shoestring.

OF course, there's a lot of imagination connected with it because if twine could really make you well there wouldn't be an unhealthy shipping clerk in the world.

WRAPPING counters would soon become operating tables.

And every department store would be a maternity house.

PEOPLE all over the country would be paying Sears-Roebuck for the privilege of tying up parcels.

CAN you imagine going into a cheap grocery store and saying, "Two pounds of sausages, give me a ball of twine?"

STRING may cure us, but a rope has been the end of many of our ancestors.

ONCE-OVERS

(Copyright, 1924, by International Feature Service, Inc.)

DON'T RAISE THE DEVIL. GET A HOBBY

You feel at times that you would like to "raise the devil."

It seems to you that you have kept your natural tendency that way, under control about as long as possible for you.

You feel that if you could cut loose for a short time that you could settle down to your present routine and be happy.

In by gone days when this feeling came on you went, perhaps, to the place where the swinging doors seemed to welcome you and, before you left and the spell was satisfied, you made a fool of yourself and admitted it.

You were ashamed and resolved that never again would you do the same.

The fact that you were drunk might excuse some things with certain persons, but those same persons would not excuse you for the same things if done when sober.

What you need is a hobby of some kind.

You need something to draw you out of the rut and put actively your craving for "something different."

Isn't there something you would like to do in your spare time, both profitable and pleasant to you?

INDEPENDENT CO-OPERATING IN RADIO NOW

American's Monitor Finds the Ships Are Asked to Come in on 700 Meters

Evidence that the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company has at last begun to co-operate with the American and broadcast listeners comes with the latest report of the American's monitor station operator.

Last night WSA, the East Hampton, N. Y., station of that independent company, requested a foreign ship to reply on 700 meters in order to prevent interference with broadcasting.

Compare this with the practice of WSA when the American began its campaign. In those days this station, together with other shore stations, frequently asked ships to reply on 450 meters, which would cause considerable interference with broadcasting.

Nearly all the interference is now caused by foreign ships.

INTERFERENCE LOG, JAN. 18

THE LISTENER

Station WAAM in Newark always begin their nightly broadcast with the Star Spangled Banner. To hear this anthem around 8 o'clock is to identify the sattion instantly.

We try not to toot the Boston American's horn in this column, but we have to admit that the American's band which made its debut last Tuesday at WNAC is a good one. The band is based on the Symphony Orchestra, but instead of the stringed instruments of the latter, it has a complete section of clarinets. To the clarinets, are added the usual sections of wood, wind, brass and percussion instruments of the symphony orchestra. Most of the members have played many times before under the direction of Stanislao Gallo. And bands are sufficiently uncommon in broadcasting not to be interesting.

I wonder how many fans answer the request of WBAK, the Pennsylvania State police, at Harrisburg, broadcast every night regularly that listeners send them a card so that they can determine how far they are reaching out.

It begins to look as if Paul Specht, who is trying to discover new jazz by offering to play compositions submitted, will get more songs than Bok got peace plans. Joel G. Silver recently came to us with a song, entitled "This Is Station L-O-V-E, Broadcasting Right from My Heart." Silver scores 100 per cent. on his title. Song titles are scored this way, you know: 50 per cent. if the word "love" is used and 50 per cent. if "heart" is used. At least that is the way it seems to the layman.

On Sunday night I can always count on hearing the Skinner organ recital broadcast by WEAF. It is rebroadcast by WCAP, Washington, and WJAR, Providence. If code interference or static bust it up from one station, I can swing the dial over and be sure to get it at either of the other two. But the unusual feature of it is that it seems to come better from WCAP, the farthest away.

Revue on the Radio

GENEVA PRICE
Star of the Greenwich Village Follies.

The entire Greenwich Village Follies will be broadcast from the stage of the Shubert Theatre by Station WNAC, The Shepard Stores, on Monday, January 21. This will be the first broadcast of a revue from the theatre, although WNAC has broadcast many musical comedies.

SUPER CONTEST ENTRIES NOT LIMITED

Operators May Enter Any Number of Reports; Only Best Ones Considered

Only two more nights remain for the Boston American Super contest.

Several contestants have filed reports already, but in each case they reserved the right to file another report if they succeded in getting a better list of stations.

Reports may be filed any time and the earlier they are filed, the sooner they can be checked up. No reports will, however, be accepted after January 22.

While reports for several nights may be entered, only one night's report will be considered in the final awarding of the prizes.

Four Harvard storage batteries are offered by the American Storage Battery Company for the largest number of stations received on a set embodying the principle of the American Super.

These prizes are as follows:

FIRST, for the largest number of stations received on a Super, a 100-ampere hour Harvard Storage Battery enclosed in a handsome rubber case.

SECOND, for the next largest number of stations received, an 80-ampere hour storage battery enclosed in a rubber case.

THIRD, for the third largest number of stations received, a 60-ampere hour storage battery enclosed in a rubber case.

Special, for the most distant station received, a 100-ampere hour storage battery enclosed in a polished mahogany case.

Reports must include:

The name and address of the contestant.

Type of variable condensers used and maximum capacity.

Turns on primary and secondary of radio-frequency couplers.

Graduations on dials, whether from one to 100 or one to 180.

Call letters of stations received, exact time, selection heard, dial readings, and distance of the station in miles.

In case of ties, the award will be made for the neatest report.

Contestants should preserve their sets intact after the reports are filed, so that they may be examined, if necessary.

Winners will be announced just as soon as the reports can be checked up.

HOW TO KEEP WELL
By Dr. Mahoney

By DR. F. X. MAHONEY,
Boston Health Commissioner.

YOUR eyes and your health are tied tightly together.

When one goes on the rocks, the other follows.

It is something more than traveling through life with cloudy "windows." The latter means missing the sights, of course, but it also means a continuous drain upon your physical well-being until you land in a doctor's anteroom with a firm conviction that you can outguess completely as to what's wrong: Everything's wrong.

Your head aches, your digestion's bad, you've lost weight and you're ready to go to bat with anyone on the drop of a hat.

And you really are sick. You have distressing symptoms which indicate that you're out of gear.

"Better see an oculist," says the doctor after he has looked you over, and he writes out the name of a good physician.

DANGERS IN NEGLECT

"How long have you had the headaches?" the oculist asks you.

"Three or four years, I guess, off and on," you tell him, "but they just gotten real bad lately."

For three or four years your eyes have been crying out against abuse. For some indefinite period previous to that there was something wrong with your eyes. You passed up the first symptoms—blurred vision, soreness and a slight switching and swelling. And then the news of your neglect began scurrying along the nerves to other centres and the headaches started. Still you ignored them and the reaction became more general.

Then your digestion began to skip and you didn't sleep well. And finally the low state of your energy drove you to a physician.

If you had gone to your physician four years ago you would have saved yourself four years of discomfort and four years of unnecessary strain upon your physical machinery.

And it works the other way, too. If you neglect symptoms that tell you that you are below par and need medical attention, you'll get a reaction from your eyes. Those delicate organs play hand in hand with your health, and you can't neglect one and continue on friendly terms with the other.

Boston has as many good physicians in specialized branches of medicine as any city in the world, but don't go blindly to some "eye specialist" because he advertises or because his name was the first you saw in the directory. Call up your family physician or any good firm of opticians and ask them to recommend a reputable oculist.

Two of the best eye clinics in the country are at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary and the Massachusetts General Hospital. The city's most skilled men are on the staff there and anyone may have their opinion and services.

Dear Doctor:

In the house in which I live and pay rent for in Boston there is a cesspool and no sewer. Should not a sewer be provided for this house?

Dear Doctor:

Answer—There are comparatively few houses in Boston that are not connected by a drain to the sewer, and this is the law, and only where a structure is temporary, or where there is no sewer in the street is a cesspool allowed.

Dear Doctor:

Is a person allowed to shake and beat rugs and mats from their window? This is done by my neighbor, and the dust and dirt blackens the clothes on the lines and also enters my rooms downstairs.

Answer—The shaking and beating of rugs, mats or carpets in the manner you describe is contrary to our regulations. Report the matter in writing or by telephone to the Sanitary Division of the Health Department.

Dear Doctor:

Do shellfish become bad while in the water or after being removed from it?

Answer—Shellfish may be bad when taken from the water, having been bred or lived in water that was contaminated. Also, they may become bad after being removed from the water or bed. Shellfish are often contaminated by being put in a bucket of dirty or polluted water after removal. Shellfish should always be kept cold.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND
No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications

Why?

Editor Boston American:

Why can't our government protect State Department business in foreign affairs? A Washington dispatch says: "Seizure by British agents of State Department documents and other American mail passing through regular channels will be protested by Congress. Documents are missing that had been dispatched by Secretary Hughes to Rear Admiral Bristol, high commissioner at Constantinople."

The British also are charged with "confiscating commercial telegraph messages and personal letters." "Our Navy Department tried in vain to get certain telegrams through to Rear Admiral Chester and was met with determined opposition by rivals from the British Isles."

"Our navy," that protected England and the English navy in the late war!

What is wrong with our government at Washington? Interference with mail and telegraph in the United States is called a high crime. Why should our government stand for this high-handed thievery by a foreign nation? We lack the strong hand of a Grover Cleveland and "Dick" Olney at the head of affairs.

J. E. YOUNG.

Prohibition

Editor Boston American:

As the presidential election is getting nearer every day there is no doubt the prohibition propagandists are losing no time to meet all candidates for the presidency, to make sure they are in favor of the enforcement of the Volstead act. I don't believe any man seeking office such as President of the United States would permit any dictation as to what he should do if elected. If we had a direct voting system for the national elections as we have for the city or State, any candidate that would come out openly, not only for the modifying but for the repealing of the Volstead act, would be elected. In other words, our friend reformers would soon find that a large percentage of the American people have absolutely no use for prohibition laws. Let it be remembered that the heaviest vote in this country is the vote of the working class of people, and these people have made America what it is today. Personally, I have no use for any liquor, but I do strictly believe in personal liberty. Thank God, liberty is what America stands for.

OTTO J. SLATINSKY.

Flappers and Zero

Editor Boston American:

Here is what some so-called thoughtless people wear in zero weather:

One-piece dresses with sleeves, instead of sleeveless dresses as the flappers wear.

Low shoes.

Lightweight wool hose instead of silk embroidery hose (rolled).

Lightweight wool union suits instead of silk chemise and silk bloomers.

Velvet or felt hats instead of satin or straw hats.

The word flapper is not in my dictionary, but this is the result of a careful analysis: A human being (female) with an undeveloped brain, with no idea of what God created her for. The mate of this unfortunate creature is called the cake-eater. He seems to possess a slight degree of intelligence. L. M. HINKLE.

Work for Bankers

Editor Boston American:

Cannot some way be found to stop the insults of the American international bankers and foreign propagandists? Their constant appeal to us for our blood and treasure is an insult to our intelligence.

We should tell them that before they could expect any assistance from us for "chaotic" Europe, they would have to remove every king and every dictator from his high perch; reduce their armies and navies to the requirements of police work; pass laws preventing a declaration of war before a referendum vote had been held, and a majority had approved. We would be told that it could not be done. Our reply to that should be: The things you ask of us cannot be done; now stop talking, we are tired of the subject. If they persisted, they should be declared a nuisance and some means found to rid our country of them. CURTIS O. TAYLOR.

Seeks Work

Editor Helping Hand:

I am writing to ask if you know of any place where I can work nights cleaning buildings or anything. I am alone in the world with a boy to care for. He was operated on for a rupture, and last week was hit by an auto. I have no means of support except what I can earn myself. Have any of your readers any clothing, size ten, for a boy? I take size 38 myself.

MRS. G. F. B.

Made Grateful

Editor Helping Hand:

I got in touch with the address you sent me, and they brought me a lovely bundle of baby clothes, high chair, sled, blackboard, books, and a few other toys, and two quarts of milk which came just in time for dinner. We were more than thankful for them, and they made us very happy. MRS. M. G.

Good! We add our thanks to Mrs. C. N. M. for this.

She's Happy Now

Editor Helping Hand:

The other day I received another box of clothing from Mrs. S. There were some of the nicest things for myself and children, and you can be sure it made me happy. Now I can take my children with me and go out walking the same as everyone. Before, I had to stay in the house. I also received another box from Mrs. J. C. They are such kind-hearted people. I can't be unhappy when I have such kind friends. MRS. D. J.
